Jobless rate sticks at 5%

WASHINGTON — Unemployment hung stubbornly at 5 per cent of the U.S. labor force in May but government figures released Friday also provided new evidence that the current economic boom will soon start slowing down. The Labor Department reported telltale declines in factory employes' average work week and overtime hours last month and a slowdown in growth of employment rolls in the past two months — all indicating a slowing of production. These developments combined with a Commerce Department report Monday that its index of leading economic indicators dropped in April for the first time in 30 months pointed toward a slackening in the economy which some economists have predicted would turn into a recession.

Gold, dollar on see-saw

LONDON — The price of gold skyrocketed to an all-time high of $120 an ounce on European money markets Friday while the ailing U.S. dollar continued its steady decline in a new burst of jitters, dropping to its lowest value in West Germany since the end of World War II. "The United States and France still seem poles apart on ideas for a new price structure for gold," said a spokesman for Johnson Matthey, a London bullion dealer. "This has caused renewed uncertainty and a stampede for gold." Other dealers blamed gold buying by Japan. Figures published in Tokyo showed Japan bought 31 tons in April and 23 tons in May.

Cold war heats up

REYKJAVIK, Iceland — Prime Minister Olafur Johannesson said a ramming incident Friday between British trawlers and an Icelandic coastal vessel was an "act of aggression" and the most serious clash so far in the fishing dispute between the two NATO allies. Speaking in an interview with UPI the Prime Minister said, "This is so serious that we must renew our demand to NATO" that the Western defense alliance order Britain to withdraw its warships protecting British trawlers inside Iceland's disputed 50-mile territorial fishing limit. International law recognizes only a 12-mile limit.

'Blob' reveals identity

GARLAND, Tex. — The reddish "blob" that has been pulsating in Marie Harris' backyard is a fungus. The proper scientific name is myxomycete Fuligo septica, or just Fuligo to his friends. A University of Texas professor established its identity Friday. The fungus first appeared in Mrs. Harris' backyard three weeks ago and quivered its way into the headlines. "I don't know what that thing is, but I can't kill it," the Garland housewife said.

Kissinger calls summit success

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Nixon flew back to Washington Friday after his summit meeting with French President Georges Pompidou and Nixon's top foreign affairs adviser said the trip accomplished "all we set out to do."

Nixon touched down briefly in Washington after his flight from Reykjavik, Iceland, and he immediately helicoptered to his Camp David retreat.

"We achieved what we set out to do," national security adviser Dr. Henry A. Kissinger told reporters on the Washington-bound Presidential jet.

"The talks were not held to go into the substance of issues," he added, but he said Pompidou had agreed to join in an international conference at the deputy Foreign Minister level in July to consider reshaping the Atlantic Alliance.

Also, Kissinger said, the French president agreed to go along with bilateral Franco-American discussions on major problems while international meetings are being held simultaneously over the next several weeks on monetary problems, NATO and European security.

Kissinger and Secretary of State William P. Rogers praised the general atmosphere of the talks. Rogers said "there was less controversy, less sharpness" in the discussions.

Asked if the Watergate scandal impaired the talks, Rogers replied, "not in the slightest."

At their final Friday morning session, Nixon and Pompidou met for two hours and then called in their aides. A French spokesman quoted Nixon as telling the larger meeting that "naturally there was some disagreement but it must not be over-dramatized" because of full agreement on basic goals.

After Nixon's departure, Pompidou held an impromptu news conference before returning to Paris. "We did not make decisions," he said. "There were issues on which we agreed and others on which we disagreed, but on balance, the sum of agreements is larger than the disagreements."

His assessment squared with of White House foreign policy adviser Henry A. Kissinger, who took part in virtually all of the three Nixon-Pompidou meetings.

He said negotiations "would continue in established forums" on the U.S. desire to break through the high agricultural tariffs of Common Market countries —a barrier which chiefly benefits the French — and France's desire for the United States to resume its abandoned policy of converting foreign dollars into gold.

In Washington, UPI obtained a copy of a memorandum in which Treasury Secretary George P. Shultz warned Nixon in advance of the summit to beware of French efforts to gain U.S. monetary concessions in return for vague gestures toward meeting U.S. diplomatic and defense objectives.

NASA gears up for Skylab repair

HOUSTON (UPI) — Fighting the energy crisis aboard Skylab, NASA rushed plans Friday to attempt a bold repair walk in space as soon as next Tuesday and to send a second crew up to the orbiting space station 12 days ahead of schedule on July 27.

Successful completion of the spacewalk salvage job could clear the Skylab 1 astronauts—now entering their second week in orbit—to remain aboard the research outpost longer than the originally planned record 28 days, a top space agency official said.

Rocco Petrone, director of the Marshall Space Flight Center in Huntsville, Ala., said approval of such an extension to achieve scientific goals now being lost because of Skylab's power shortage would depend on what doctors had to say about the crew's condition.

Petrone also said the spacewalk—the most dangerous ever seriously considered—would require one astronaut to crawl hand-over-hand 20 feet along the outside of Skylab and, using a surgeon's bone saw, free a jammed solar power generator to double the station's electrical supply. Final approval of the plan will be decided late Monday, he said.

Astronauts Charles "Pete" Conrad, Joseph P. Kerwin and Paul J. Weitz, meanwhile, marked the beginning of their second week in space by taking the day off and flashing earthward televised scenes of weightless gymnastics that left colleagues on the ground "goggle-eyed" and "green with envy."

"We've been hustling pretty good on our day off," Conrad said as bedtime approached.

Mission controllers planned to rouse the crew today with a loud vocal rendition of "Happy Birthday" radioed up to Conrad, who is turning 43 in space.

Resuming scientific investigations after more than a day of letting Skylab's damaged electrical batteries recharge, the astronauts planned to try for a second time the type of earth resources survey that Wednesday triggered the space station's latest power crisis.

During Friday's television spectacular Conrad, Kerwin and Weitz footraced around the walls of their silo-like cabin in what they called the "Skylab 500," effortlessly performing flips and handsprings.

Budget unit predicts 5-year deficit low

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The federal budget will show a modest $2.7 billion deficit in the next 12 months, the smallest amount of red-ink spending by the government in five years, the Office of Management and Budget (OMB) said Friday.

The booming economy, which has raised corporate profits and personal income, and thus tax collections, is the chief factor in the sharply improved budget picture, the OMB said.

While taxes from citizens and businesses are running at an unexpectedly high rate, the administration said it is not raising its spending beyond the goals set last January.

The result, said the OMB, will be a budget deficit $7 billion smaller than originally forecast for the 1973 fiscal year, ending June 30, and $10 billion less than estimated for fiscal 1974.

The last time the government took in more money than it spent was in 1969 when it ran a small $3.2 billion surplus. Deficits of $2.8 billion, $23 billion and $23.2 billion followed in the next three fiscal years.

Administration economists have a poor record for budget forecasting but if the latest set of figures holds, this is how the federal balance sheet will look for fiscal years 1973 and 1974 (billions of dollars.):

1973, receipts $232.0, outlays $249.8, deficit $17.8

1974, receipts $266.0, outlays $268.7, deficit $2.7

A number of factors could upset these estimates. A recession next year, which many private economists think likely, would reduce taxes and cut into the revenue estimates.

The revised figures were officially released to Congress Friday .

Annual package cost $37 million

State, union agree on pact

HARRISBURG (UPI) — The state and negotiators for its 75,000-member employe union have agreed on a wage-fringe benefit hike that would cost Pennsylvania $37 million a year, it was learned Friday.

The agreement covers three years with a $520 wage increase in each of the first two years. The increase in the third year would be subject to negotiations at that time.

The fringe benefit package includes fully paid health insurance for the complete year, two paid personal leave days and establishment of a trust fund that would pay part of the members' prescription drug costs.

Neither the state nor the American Federation of State, County and Municipal Employes Union would comment on the agreement.

Christ Zervanos, chief state negotiator, said bargainers agreed not to disclose any terms. He said there has been substantial progress but that the talks had reached a "sensitive stage."

An AFSCME spokesman confirmed that "substantial progress has been made.

It was learned that the only contract provision remaining to be resolved involves seniority. Negotiators hope to iron out the dispute when talks continue next Tuesday and Wednesday.

If the two sides do finally agree on a $37 million contract, it could leave the legislature with a knotty budget problem.

House Republicans have included no money whatsoever in their budget proposals to cover wage increases negotiated between AFSCME and the state.

Senate Democrats have included in their budget proposals only $27 million to cover the state employe wage increases — $10 million less than the agreement would require.

Gov. Milton J. Shapp, in his original budget proposal to the legislature, asked for $30 million.

The $520-a-year wage increase is said to equal a 5.5 per cent wage hike for the entire union membership.

AAA says Poconos has enough gas

OTTAWAY NEWS SERVICE
Harrisburg Bureau

HARRISBURG — Some Northeastern Pennsylvania gas stations are shortening business hours because of below-normal gasoline supplies but they are not rationing amounts of gas sold to customers.

See related stories, page 2

This was the report Friday from the Pennsylvania AAA Federation which said all major oil company stations in the Pocono Mountain areas report adequate gas supplies for the coming week although allotments to stations have been reported curtailed from 20 to 30 per cent over last year.

The Triple A said that stations with reduced allotments will begin serving regular customers on a preferred basis if supplies get tight toward the end of June.

The association said a survey of Northeastern Pennsylvania — including the Pocono area — showed three independent stations were closed and without fuel.

The Triple A added that Pennsylvania motorists should experience no "major difficulties" in obtaining gas over the weekend.

Watergate panel counsel won't suspend hearings

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Senate Watergate counsel Sam Dash rejected as "impossible" special prosecutor Archibald Cox' request to halt the Senate Watergate hearings, it was reported Friday. Neither Dash nor Cox denied the story.

Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield, speaking with reporters, also asserted the preeminence of the Senate's select Watergate investigating committee.

"There will be nobody, any group, subordinating the Senate committee," Mansfield said. "It is operating by and with the consent of the Senate and has the Senate's full confidence."

The Washington Post reported that at a meeting of Dash and Cox Wednesday, Cox said the nationally televised hearings are jeopardizing future trials in the case and should be dropped "completely."

The Post quoted Dash as replying, "That would be impossible."

In a statement, Cox acknowledged that he and Dash discussed "the risk of serious damage to the investigations and any resulting prosecution and the various ways of reducing the harm."

Cox also said questions of immunity for witnesses was discussed but he denied he told Dash he would ask the courts to stop the hearings.

In his statement, Dash said the meeting was held preparatory to Cox' conferring with Ervin. Dash said the Post story did not originate with him, and added, "The quoted portions of the news story do not accurately report what was stated by either Prof. Cox or me at the meeting."

"They could talk to each other from now to Kingdom come but the Senate committee will be pre-eminent," Mansfield said of the Cox-Dash talks.

The Senate committee was established earlier this year to investigate the June 17 break-in at the Democratic national offices in the Watergate complex as well as an alleged general pattern of political espionage and sabotage during the 1972 presidential campaign.

The hearings, in recess this week, resume Tuesday.

POWs 'tortured' buddies

DALLAS (UPI) — A civilian who spent five years in a North Vietnamese prison said Friday a small group of American POWs collaborated with their captors causing the torture, solitary confinement and discomfort of other prisoners.

Michael Benge, a U.S. government employe, identified the collaborators as some of eight former POWs charged Tuesday with a series of court-martial offenses including aid to the enemy and general misconduct.

"I have knowledge on about four of them," Benge said. "I do not have definite proof on all of them, but I do know that a certain number of them did willingly collaborate and that led to tortures, solitary confinement and discomfort of other prisoners."

Benge, of Heppner, Ore., was in Dallas for a tribute to former POWs and Vietnam veterans. He told UPI he would be willing to testify against the prisoners.

The misconduct charges were filed by Col. Theodore W. Guy, senior officer at "The Plantation" prison camp outside Hanoi where Benge and the others were held captive until early this year.

Jail deaths tied to Muslim sect

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — Orthodox Muslims ordered two prisoners to assassinate the deputy warden at Holmesburg Prison because he "said no to the Muslims once too often," the Philadelphia Bulletin reported Friday.

The warden and deputy warden at the jail were stabbed to death Thursday. The warden was killed because he came to the aid of his assistant, the newspaper said.

Two inmates who police said were Muslims were charged with the stabbing deaths Thursday of Warden Patrick M. Curran, 48, and Deputy Warden Robert F. Fromhold, 51.

The bulletin said the bloodbath in Fromhold's office was the result of the deputy having "said no to the Muslims once too often."

According to the newspaper's sources, Fromhold's murder was ordered at a meeting Wednesday night of members of the Orthodox Muslims, a more militant branch of the Muslim sect.

The paper said 'sources indicated Curran was killed when he tried to intervene as the two suspects were attacking the deputy warden.

Officials said two inmates obtained a pass to attend a "grievance hearing" with Fromhold reportedly with a request for day-long Muslim prayer services. Such services had been permitted on a limited basis because of overcrowding at the prison, which was designed to hold 700 men but instead houses 1,200.

The inmates, Fred Burton, 26, convicted last year of the killing of a city park policeman, and Joseph Bowen, 25, awaiting trial in another police slaying, allegedly began stabbing Fromhold shortly after entering the office.

The deputy's cries for help were answered by Curran and Capt. Leroy Taylor, who were in an office across the hall. They both became involved in the deadly scuffle.

Taylor, 49, who was stabbed in the back, was reported in good condition Friday, and both Burton and Bowen were listed in satisfactory condition with head injuries and possible fractures suffered when they were subdued by other guards.

One investigator, who asked to remain anonymous, said the prayer service request may have been a "ruse" to enter the room, adding that there appeared to be little time for a discussion before the stabbing started.

Oil nations, processors hike crude oil prices

GENEVA (UPI) — The world's major oil producing nations and the Western consortiums who process the crude oil announced Friday they had agreed to increase oil prices by 11.9 per cent.

The countries and the companies also announced an agreement to keep oil prices under constant review until the end of 1975 to guard against currency fluctuations.

The arrangement provides for daily adjustments depending on the value of the U.S. dollar on currency markets. If the dollar goes up, oil prices will go down or vice versa. It also substitutes a monthly review of prices instead of the review every three months in force until now.

The eight countries signing the agreement were Abu Dhabi, Kuwait, Libya, Quatar, Iran, Iraq, Nigeria and Saudi Arabia. The remaining three members of the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries (OPEC) did not adhere to the agreement. They are Indonesia, Algeria and Venezuela.

Nixon warned of undercutting

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Treasury Secretary George P. Shultz wrote President Nixon before the just-completed Iceland summit meeting with French President Georges Pompidou, warning that France was trying to "undercut" the U.S. role in world affairs, UPI learned Friday.

Shultz, Nixon's chief economic adviser, said it would be "a serious mistake to attempt to settle...any of the concrete issues" at the summit conference.

The advice was contained in a memorandum written by Shultz on White House stationary and addressed to "The President." It is not known if Nixon ever received or read the memo, which was obtained by UPI.

Shultz' advice takes on added meaning in light of the inconclusive results of the two-day meeting in Reykjavik, Iceland's capital. The two leaders issued a communique that said little more than that they agreed on more issues than they disagreed on.

Shultz, who accompanied Nixon on the trip, wrote that Pompidou intended to stress monetary and trade matters in the summit discussions. This intelligence came from Henry A. Kissinger, Nixon's national security affairs adviser, Shultz said.

"Mr. Pompidou will probably probe for specific and substantive concessions to his monetary views in return for vague and imprecise relaxation of resistance to our diplomatic and defense objectives," Shultz wrote the President.

"We must be alert to this tactic, particularly since French monetary objectives are in large part designed to undercut the ability of the United States to exert effective leadership in world affairs."

"I recommend that you convey to Mr. Pompidou the impression that you welcome his personal attention to this subject (monetary and trade reform), in the sense that the economic dimension is crucially important in laying the basis for lasting peace...

"You might privately recognize the particular importance of France and Mr. Pompidou to a successful resolution" of upcoming trade and monetary negotiations, Shultz advised.

"On the other hand, I think it would be a serious mistake to attempt to settle bilaterally with President Pompidou in Iceland any of the concrete issues in these negotiations...," Shultz continued.

"An agreement with the French is not forced upon us by the pressure of markets, negotiating strategy, or of public opinion. We see no probability for striking a monetary deal satisfactory to President Pompidou on significant issues today that would not undercut our entire position."

Deaths jar Ulster elections

BELFAST (UPI) — Bombing and shootings in which two persons were killed and 14 injured overshadowed tabulation of returns Friday from Northern Ireland's first local elections in six years. The count showed Protestants retaining control over most of the 26 councils despite introduction of the proportional representation system.

The deaths Thursday night raised the fatality toll in almost four years of strife among the majority Protestants, minority Roman Catholics and British security forces to 808.

With 298 of the 526 local council seats filled by 2 p.m., the count gave the major Protestant party, the Unionists, 150 seats, and other Protestant parties 54 seats against 45 seats for the main Catholic party, the Social Democratic and Labor Party (SDLP). The non-sectarian Alliance party had 39 seats and other candidates 10 seats.

Politicians said it was apparent the new proportional representation voting system would not break Protestant control over most of the councils as the British administration had hoped.

Police found the body of a man hanging in a metal factory yard in Belfast's Catholic Andersonstown district but said they did not know if it was connected to the sectarian violence and were not including it in the death count.

Senate action, high prices loom

Gas shortage slips into summer

By United Press International

The nation's gasoline shortage slipped into the summer months Friday, kicking up threats of Senate action and forcing bulk buyers to pay higher prices.

A report of from Detroit of zooming small car sales indicted to some that Americans are looking for more miles per gallon—but they still were insisting on such gas-robbing conviences as air conditioning and automatic transmissions.

In Washington Friday, Sen. Henry M. Jackson, D.-Wash., called for an investigation to determine whether the gasoline shortage was a deliberate effort by big oil companies to destroy independent refiners, drive up fuel prices, and repeal environmental protection laws.

In a letter to Lewis A. Engman, Federal Trade Commission chairman, Jackson asked for a report within 30 days on whether the nation's oil giants were engaging in a conspiracy to seize total control of the market.

At the same time, Jackson introduced an amendment to his own mandatory fuels allocation bill calling for tough new anti-trust controls and a long-range, six-month FTC study on the structure of the American petroleum industry.

Jackson said at a news conference the administration's program of voluntary gasoline allocation had fallen "flat on its face."

In another development, Sen. Russell B. Long, D-La., said in an interview Friday that an additional tax on gasoline, which would tend to reduce consumption, might be a partial solution to the shortage.

In San Francisco, Fred L. Hartley, president of Union Oil Co. of California, told the California Assembly Committee on Transportation that the gasoline shortage would get worse in 1974.

"This shortage didn't just happen," he said. "It's manmade and I can assure you that what happened was predicted several years ago."

Hartley said supplies were short mainly because "refinery expansion was curtailed due to a lack of crude (oil) supply and environmental opposition and to a lesser degree by indecision about gasoline specifications."

Local governments and private bulk buyers continued to be hit hard by gasoline suppliers either unwilling to renew contracts or offering bids that boosted prices.

Los Angeles County Friday agreed to a 67 per cent increase in the cost of its gasoline supplies after Shell Oil Co. threatened to sell the fuel to the city of Los Angeles.

County Supervisor James Hayes said the contract with Shell, the only firm to bid for the county's 12.5 million gallon order, allows the county to cancel out on 30-days notice and contains a clause guaranteeing a rate reduction if Shell signs a similar contract elsewhere at a lower price.

In Honolulu, the First Insurance Co. ordered all employes who do not need their cars during working hours to find other transportation to work, and in Seattle, police officers have been ordered to park their cars at least one hour of each shift and walk their beats.

Reaction outrage to advice

WASHINGTON (UPI) — One senator called for raising the price of gasoline, another suggested the gas shortage is a deliberate contrivance and a consumer group suggested lowered speed limits might be counter-productive as the nation sought Friday to deal with a growing fuel pinch.

Chairman Russell B. Long of the Senate Finance Committee said a new gasoline tax, coupled with some benefits for commuters, might ease the shortage this summer.

But he said there will have to be "a considerable amount of public inconvenience" before the American people accept a tax increase or any other measures needed to meet "this crisis that will be with us this summer."

Sen. Henry M. Jackson, D-Wash., meanwhile, asked the Federal Trade Commission to determine if the big oil companies were deliberately causing a shortage in order to force smaller independents out of business.

In a letter to Lewis A. Engman, Federal Trade Commission chairman, Jackson asked for a report within 30 days on whether the nation's oil giants were engaging in a conspiracy to seize total control of the gasoline market.

At the same time, Jackson introduced an amendment to his own mandatory fuels allocation bill calling for tough new antitrust controls and a long-range, six-month FTC study on the structure of the American petroleum industry.

He said he was aware that the FTC has been investigating the major oil corporations but said: "I want action. We've waited too long."

Small cars get nod by gas-saving drivers

DETROIT (UPI) — Americans may be switching to small cars because of a concern over a fuel crisis, but they're not willing to give up gas-guzzling conveniences.

"The big noise over a fuel shortage has just got to make a difference in what car a person buys, but we're not sure how much yet," said one key industry observer Friday. "But there is a gut instinct that says it has to make some difference."

Through April of this year, small cars —including the imports —accounted for 38.9 per cent of all sales, compared with 34.8 per cent in 1972. But buyers are equipping those cars with gas-robbing devices.

Fifty-five per cent of all Ford Pintos and 56 per cent of Chevrolet Vegas are equipped with automatic transmissions. Air conditioning can be found on 25 per cent of the Pintos and 27 per cent of the Vegas.

At American Motors, where the subcompact Gremlin and compact Hornet are pushing the smallest of the major automakers back into the black, there's little expectation that people will give up the big cars.

Greek dictator abolishes monarchy; charges coup

ATHENS (UPI) — Premier George Papadopoulos, accusing King Constantine of attempting a coup with "an unforgiveable lack of maturity," abolished the monarchy Friday and declared Greece a presidential republic. He appointed himself president.

In a 10-minute speech broadcast nationwide, Papadopoulos called for a national referendum within two months to approve the action.

Papadopoulos, who had been premier and regent for the king, said the monarch himself had brought about his own fall "through his behavior since he came to the throne nine years ago until now when he fell from the throne by himself."

The new president said the king, who has lived in exile in Rome since a counter-coup led by him in December, 1967, failed, had continued his anti-government activities abroad. Papadopoulos referred to these as "activities witnessing an unforgivable lack of maturity for an adult person.

"He (the king) cooperated with all kinds of reactionaries, turned against the armed forces and behaved like a party leader of adventurists, fellow travelers, saboteurs and even murderers," Papadopoulos said. (In Rome, Italian authorities intensified security at the king's villa following Papadopoulous' announcement. A police guard assigned to the villa near the ancient Appian Way told newsmen Constantine "does not want to be disturbed for any reason.")

Papadopoulos said the government had taken the action to abolish the monarchy because "of the obvious opposition of the great majority of the people to the maintenance of the system of crowned democracy in Greece, the circumstances under which the king left the country, his behavior and recent events."

Writer dies of disease he chronicled in story

NEW YORK (UPI) — Delos Smith, United Press International science editor whose columns were read by a generation of readers in hundreds of newspapers, died Thursday night of lung cancer. He was 68.

The six-foot-two, 210-pound reporter devoted a lifetime to journalism. He was appointed science editor in 1952 and it was in this capacity that he became best known.

His writing in the field of science ranged from aerospace to zoology and earned him a variety of awards.

On May 1, the New York Press Club named Smith winner of its 1973 feature award for his story that told of his own struggle with disease, "My Fight Against Cancer." A week later the Society of Silurians, an organization of veteran newspaper men and women, selected Smith for a special citation. The Deadline Club, the New York City chapter of Sigma Delta Chi, the journalism fraternity, awarded him its "Deadliner" award May 23 for the story.

On Aug. 12, 1971, Smith learned that he had cancer of the lung. The award-winning article was a personal account of how he and a determined team of doctors fought the disease.

But its biggest message was one of hope for other cancer victims. It detailed how cancer can be fought with greater success, if diagnosed in time, with every passing day.

Following surgery and a long convalescence, Smith resumed his column and was turning out "Science Today" columns when he returned to the hospital one month ago.

Can auction save playhouse?

NEW HOPE, Pa. (UPI) — A vest worn by Marlon Brando in "The Godfather" is but one of many items of theatrical garb being auctioned off through Sunday by the Bucks County Playhouse in its fight for financial survival.

The playhouse, the oldest continuous non-profit repertory company in the country, is in danger of not raising the curtain on its 35th season in the fall because of a $350,000 debt resulting from rising production costs.

Persons will be bidding by telephone for such costumes, in addition to Brando's "Godfather" suit, as those worn by Mary Martin in the "Sound of Music," Ethel Merman in "Annie Get Your Gun" and Yul Brynner in "The King and I."

The phones will be manned by actors Van Johnson and Tom Poston and football commentator Don Meredith, among other personalities expected.

Although the playhouse was designated the State Theater of Pennsylvania by a resolution of the legislature in 1959, it does not receive any state funding aside from an infrequent grant.

Saboteurs hit Saigon ammo

SAIGON (UPI) — Communist saboteurs slipped into a huge government ammunition dump near Saigon before dawn Friday and set off charges that detonated almost 4,000 tons of explosives in a daylong inferno.

At least one person was killed, 14 were wounded and eight others reported missing in the destruction of the dump outside the Long Binh military base, according to sources from the International Commission of Control and Supervision (ICCS).

The ammunition dump was still burning early Friday night, and two more sections containing small arms ammunition were endangered, the ICCS sources said.

The first blast occurred at 4:50 a.m., the sources said, and was detonated by four satchel charges the saboteurs placed in the dump. Investigators found two more unexploded, Chinese-made charges inside the dump, an ICCS source said.

"It is being listed as the work of a Viet Cong sapper team," one source said.

The South Vietnamese military security service began an investigation of the sabotage while the dump was still exploding.

Otis rejects 'protection'

BUENOS AIRES (UPI) — The Otis Elevator Company Friday indicated it would shut its plant here rather than pay protection money demanded by self-described leftist guerrillas.

The company Thursday evacuated 10 top foreign executives and their families by air after receiving a demand for $500,000 in ransom and a doubling of the salaries of its 1,200 employes.

Ford Motors of Argentina Friday continued to make deliveries of food and school suplies demanded as "protection money" by the leftist People's Revolutionary Army (ERP). ERP members shot two Ford employes last week and threatened to kidnap others.

The Otis company Friday issued a statement saying it had "reason to doubt" that the telephone caller who made the demands, represented a threat by leftist guerrillas.

Rubber magnate, 75, dies

Harvey S. Firestone

AKRON, Ohio (UPI) — Harvey S. Firestone, Jr., former chairman of the Board of Firestone Tire & Rubber Co. and a power in the U.S. rubber industry for more than four decades, died Friday at his home here following a long illness. He was 75.

Firestone, was with the company for 50 years, as chief executive officer for 17 years from 1946 until 1963 when he relinquished the company's top post at the age of 65.

He remained as chairman of the board until 1966 and served as honorary chairman until his retirement from active service in 1969. He continued as honorary director until his death. He also was president of the Firestone Foundation.

Firestone was two years old when his father founded the Firestone Tire & Rubber Co. By his freshman year at Princeton University, he was going on camping trips with Harvey Sr., Thomas A. Edison and Henry Ford.

And at his retirement in 1969, company sales had doubled to reach $1.3 billion.

Born on April 20, 1898, in Chicago to Harvey S. and Idabelle Smith Firestone, Harvey Jr., attended Asheville School, Asheville, N.C., from 1912 until 1916 when he entered Princeton. In 1916, 1918, 1919 and 1921, Firestone accompanied his father on camping trips with Edison, Ford and John Burroughs, the naturalist.

During his freshman year in college he trained in aviation, obtaining a pilot's license from the Federation Aeronautique Internationale and subsequently enlisting in the United States Naval Aviation Corps.

He graduated from Princeton in 1920 with an B.A. degree.

In 1919, at the age of 21, Firestone began his career with his father's company as a director. He became a vice president in 1929, president in 1941, president and chief executive officer in 1946 and chairman and chief executive officer in 1948.

Firestone relinquished the company's top operating post to his brother, Raymond C., upon reaching 65, in 1963. He continued as chairman of the board of directors until 1966 and served as honorary chairman until his retirement from active service in 1969.

The years Firestone headed the company were marked by steady expansion, both in the U.S. and around the world. In 1946, Firestone had 47 plants in 14 countries including 23 in the U.S. By 1963, the company had expanded to 75 plants, 41 overseas in 23 countries and 34 in the U.S.

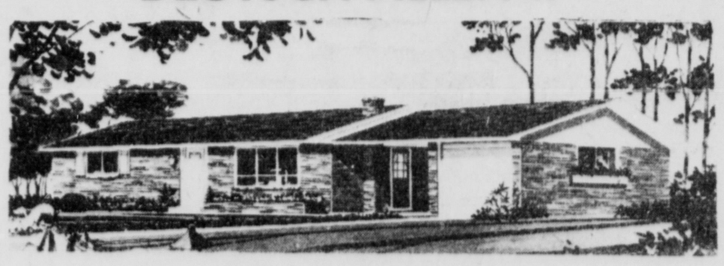

Today, Firestone has 121 plants or facilities in 29 countries.

On Monday evening, Dec. 3, 1928, Firestone and his father stood on a stage before two giant network microphones and started a musical tradition—the Voice of Firestone, which continued on radio until 1957 and was televised from 1948 until 1959 and during 1962-63.

Oil quota blamed for crisis

(EDITOR'S NOTE: Last in a three-part series on the energy crisis.)

By DAVID E. LYNCH
Ottaway News Service
Washington Bureau

WASHINGTON — The controversial oil import quota program that was lauded at its inception by the oil companies and defended through the years by the federal government and the industry has been abolished and blamed as the cause of the current gasoline shortage.

New England lawmakers, who have been arguing all along that the quotas never did anything except allow the domestic industry to make money on the annual shortages of home heating oil, are wondering why their continually-rejected arguments are now being accepted by the government and the industry.

It is interesting to compare what the government and the industry were saying about the oil import program in 1971 with what they are saying now that President Nixon has replaced it with a tariff system.

Kerryn King, the senior vice president of Texaco at the time, told Sen. Thomas J. McIntyre's subcommittee investigation into the quotas Sept. 20, 1971:

"I wish to reaffirm Texaco's support for the principle behind the mandatory import control program . . . this policy has helped foster the growth of a strong domestic producing industry, capable of exploring for and developing new domestic reserves."

Annon M. Card, the present senior vice president of Texaco, told the Joint Economic Committee's investigation into the current shortage May 1, 1973:

"In Texaco's view, restrictions on free market action, both in the past and present, constitute the primary reasons for the shortages that exist today . . . because of the inadequacies of the former oil import program, environmental restrictions and difficulty in earning an adequate rate of return, there are no new refineries under construction in the United States at this time," he added.

McIntyre, Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., and Rep. Silvic O. Conte, R-Mass., could not ask the musical question: "Look what they've done to my song?"

The federal government, which sent representatives to the Capitol just about every year since the import program was established to explain how this program was encouraging domestic exploration, production and refining, now explains:

"The program was adequate neither to alleviate the threat of near-term crude oil and product shortages, nor to provide longer-term incentives for increased investment in domestic exploration and production and new refinery construction and expansion," William E. Simon told the Joint Economic Committee May 2, 1973.

He went on to explain that this policy "encouraged companies to explore and produce abroad in order to benefit both from lower foreign producing costs and assurance of a large high-priced market at home."

If the international collusion theory and the domestic conspiracy are correct may never be determined.

But it appears that OPEC and the U.S. major oil companies will continue to increase their profits with the help of President Nixon's latest Energy Message.

The central thrust of his April 18 address is aimed at increasing domestic production by providing new incentives and opportunities for the exploration and development of America's energy reserves while calling on foreign crude as a short-term solution.

To encourage new exploration the President asked Congress to extend the investment tax credit provisions to the oil and gas industry by providing a seven per cent tax credit on dry, or unsuccessful, new well and a 12 per cent credit for wet, or successful, wells.

To Martin Lobel, this message is the fruits of the "conspiracy." The oil companies, he says, "blackmailed" the government into providing new incentives that will allow them to continue to "blackmail the consumer."

To the government, this message is admittedly not the final solution, but the officials involved in compiling this document are pretty well convinced that it will provide a partial solution.

To the oil industry, which has been surprisingly silent on the message, the proposal will help in the long run. But according to Texaco, price controls must be lifted to allow the importation of European gasoline that is now selling at five to 10 per cent more than it can be profitably brought into the East Coast.

Chief Bill Gethen, Jr., of the West End Fire Co. checks out the new pumper.

Pumper cost $31,000

Fire unit gets new truck

By MAUREEN RUFE
Pocono Record Reporter

BRODHEADSVILLE — The West End Fire Company has added a new red pumper, valued at $31,000, to its operating fleet of vehicles.

In addition to holding 2,500 gallons of water, the converted milk tank, atop the new Chevrolet chassis, is capable of transporting fresh drinking water to disaster areas in time of floods or other emergencies.

On order since April of last year, the truck contains a 750-gallon-per-minute, single-stage front mount pump — a duplicate of one mounted on another company vehicle.

According to Chief Bill Gethen, Jr., the same pump was ordered for the new truck to allow easy operation by the volunteers. "If you can work the old one, you can work the new one," he said. "It's as simple as that."

Gethen explained that the former milk tank was added separately to the new vehicle to save the company money, and to provide a means of carrying fresh water in case of emergency in the West End.

He estimated that if the vehicle would have been custom made, it would have added at least another $10,000 to the total price of the truck.

The officer stressed that the truck was badly needed because of the rural coverage area of the company and the fact that there were no hydrants available for the volunteers.

Gethen said that although the new vehicle is considered a pumper, a dual purpose of the truck will be to use it as a relay. He explained, for example, that if the Pleasant Valley High School or the Chestnuthill Elementary School caught fire, the nearest ponds were located at Bush's Produce or behind Altemose's Store.

In case of such emergency the fire chief said a particularly unique feature of the new truck — a portable folding canvas tank, capable of holding 2,100 gallons of water — would be used.

The canvas tank would be filled immediately from a four-and-a-half inch dump valve on the pumper. This would leave the truck free to get more water while other trucks at the scene use the water in the canvas bag.

The new pumper also contains a one-inch, booster-line hose, a float-dock strainer, capable of drafting water in as little as five inches of water, a 471-cubic-inch engine and a 10-speed transmission.

The new truck will bring the total number of operating vehicles of the company to five. The volunteers have two other pumpers, a three-quarter ton pick-up truck for grass fires and an old air force truck tanker, which will be used sparingly now that the new truck has been put into service.

The company also has a 1932 Buffalo truck which it only uses for parades.

Kathy Bergen crowned school's May Queen

TANNERSVILLE — The highlight of the Pocono Elementary Center May Day festivities was the crowning of Kathy Bergen as May Queen. The crown was presented by Mrs. Rosemary Vetter, president of the Pocono PTA.

Trophies were awarded to the outstanding male and female athletes by William Forte of the physical education department.

The May Day Program included an exercise drill by the Kindergarten class, an Indian dance by the first grade, an obstacle course demonstration by the second grade, a parachute play by the third grade and a calisthenics demonstration by the fourth grade.

The fifth grade performed square dances while the sixth grade boys performed a gymnastics demonstration. The sixth grade girls participated in the May Pole Dance.

Student presented award

EAST STROUDSBURG — Casandra Singer of Reeders recently received a $50 savings bond from the German-American Club at its 14th Anniversary Dinner-Dance, held at the Elks Club in East Stroudsburg.

Miss Singer daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Singer is a student at Pocono Mountain High School.

The award is presented annually by the club to the outstanding German language student from an area school.

Walter Dichman of Mount Bethel, president of the Club presented the award. Also attending was David F. Paulus, Foreign Language Department Head at Pocono Mountain High School.

Linda Ross on dean's list

SHIPPENSBURG — Miss Linda Ross, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jefferson Ross of Paradise Valley, has been named to the dean's list at Shippensburg State College.

Miss Ross just completed her sophomore year, majoring in elementary education, concentrating in speech. She is also a sister of the Theta Katta social sorority and a representative on the international sorority council.

'Paupack sets menu

HAWLEY — Wallenpaupack Area High School and Hawley Elementary School have announced their lunch menu for the week of June 4. The menu, which is subject to change, is as follows:

Monday — Spanish rice, buttered peas, dinner rolls, fruit and milk.

Tuesday — Beef stew, parsley rice, fresh green salad, dinner rolls, cookies and milk.

Wednesday — Hamburger on bun, chopped onion, pickle relish, potato chips, fruit and milk.

Thursday — Vegetable-mushroom soup, crackers, assorted sandwiches, relish, fruit and milk.

Friday — Fish stick on bun, tartar sauce, tomato catsup, green beans, fruited jello, cookie and milk.

Glaucoma clinic held

TOBYHANNA — The Pocono Lions Club recently sponsored a glaucoma clinic at the Tobyhanna Elementary Center.

Dr. Carl B. Weiss and Dr. James A. Harps performed the tests on 122 people from the immediate area. They were assisted by nurses Mrs. Virginia DePue, Mrs. Marjorie Tierney and Mrs. Mary Courtright.

Glaucoma is one of the leading causes of blindness.

Graduation

By NORMAN LEHDE

This is the time of year when, suddenly, the high school senior realizes that he or she is not going to be a high school senior much longer; that the sands of time for the graduating class have just about run out.

The proms, the sports, the highs and lows of the world of the classroom, perhaps even that flaming high school romance itself, are about to end. The exalted senior year has flown and the few remaining hours with teachers and classmates assume a preciousness undreamed of a few months ago.

When this writer was finding high school the best and sometimes the worst of possible worlds, the senior could look forward to a number of things in connection with the closing of his school days that were pretty much standard.

In the days before air conditioning, graduation exercises were certain to fall on the warmest night of June. Since the graduation process embraced Class Night and Commencement Night programs, make it the two warmest nights.

Class Night gave the wits and poets of the class an opportunity to mix barbs with nostalgia, to recall private jokes and youthful dreams. On commencement night, the class "brains" took over with the ranking students being honored with the opportunity to expound carefully edited versions of new hopes in attacking old problems.

There was always a commencement speaker, usually selected with the approval of the school board, who invariably told the class they were entering a bright new world lighted by the American Dream. Sometimes the speaker was short on wit but long on wind and his words of wisdom became a blur of babble as the boys and girls waited for the moments to tick away until the diplomas were presented.

Afterwards there was usually a party in which just about all the class members participated. It was free wheeling and usually lasted until a new dawn proclaimed that graduation day was truly ended.

The year book, like the class picture, was a treasured possession, but it also served as a solid reminder that, for the individual, a way of life was ended and, in the future, it would be recalled only in memory.

What are planners for?

What is the Stroudsburg planning commission for if not to plan?

The answer seems obvious enough — nothing — but the question has been raised and it is a good idea to reiterate the definition given many years ago when the commission was created: to plan for future growth and present needs and forward recommendations to Borough Council.

Wednesday, planners asked solicitor Joseph McCluskey to sound out Council members and seek guidance. What, they want to know, are their responsibilities.

The action was an apparent response to Borough Manager Harold Snyder's remark at an earlier meeting that the commission was overstepping its bounds by making recommendations on parking and downtown beautification.

If that was intended as a "mind your own business" rebuke to the planners, then it is a wise move for that board to ask for a definition of its business. As planner Dr. Bruce Dunlop remarked, "If we're not using our intelligence to plan ahead, then we're wasting our time being here."

Planners are to plan, councils are to decide and managers are to enact. The dividing lines have become increasingly hazy over past years, and it is about time they were redrawn.

Plan needs review

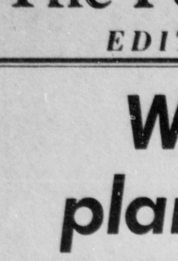

While we're thinking of planning, how long has it been since the well-known but little honored Comprehensive Plan has been reviewed?

That plan makes fascinating reading. All the means are there to virtually remake the image and concept of Stroudsburg's center area. And the best part about it is the plan doesn't envisage changing the quaint character of the town, but enhances it.

To be sure, implementing the entire plan at one stroke would be prohibitively expensive. And some parts of the plan might not be desirable or even practical. But those parts are in the minority, and there's no reason why Stroudsburg can't embark on a long-range approach to implementing the plan on a piece-meal basis.

Some recommendations contained in the Comprehensive Plan have been implemented already, mostly dealing with modifying existing traffic patterns and parking spaces. But not enough thought has gone into doing more. It is general knowledge that the only people who regularly look at the plan are the Planning Commission members, and they're having their own identity problems right now.

The Comprehensive Plan cost about $24,000 to compile way back in 1966. It has been little used since. Isn't it about time our officials devoted a session or two to reviewing it and consider how we can move in the indicated direction? The alternative is standing still, and that isn't good enough anymore.

Weekenders' golf lesson

By GENE BROWN
Ottaway News Service

Golf instructor: "Keep your eye on the ball — wrist straight — bring both arms over your shoulder — and let'er fly."

Swoooosh . . . .

Instructor: "Okay, now let's try it again. This time, hold onto the club."

Wrong people in power

Two New Hampshire farmers philosophized around the fireplace in the general store.

"This world is becoming more corrupt every day," said the first native. "There's an increasing amount of 'heing' and 'sheing' going on in the valley every evening.

The second old-timer thought for some time and then replied, "I'd say it's about the same as we've always had, The trouble is that other people are doing it now."

Better than the lottery

"What am I supposed to do with this?" snorted the reckless driver as the desk sergeant handed him a receipt for his traffic fine.

"Just hold onto it," the sergeant answered cheerfully. "When you get four of them, you get a bicycle!"

No thanks for memories

Saw a bumper sticker that read: "Let Saigons Be Bygones."

Brezhnev and his sample case

WASHINGTON — A number of extraordinary paradoxes surround the impending visit of Leonid Brezhnev to the United States. According to Marxist theory, for example, economics is the primary factor in social and political relations, yet though the Soviets are in deep and chronic economic difficulty — this, indeed, is a chief motive for the Brezhnev visit — they are also full of energy and enterprise politically, busy expanding their global influence, imaginative and even ebullient in their approach.

In stark contrast to these so-called "determinists" and "materialists," the United States seems sunk in self-doubt, its global stance one of retreat and retrenchment.

To get some notion of Russian enterprise and inventiveness, one need only "look round the habitable world," to quote Dryden's translation of Juvenal.

Shift in Soviet technique

During the last decade the Soviets have dramatically de-ideologized their approach to the expansion of their global influence. At the beginning of the 1960's, the Kremlin looked with deep suspicion upon governments that had not taken the path of "scientific socialism." Only such governments, and insurgencies deemed likely to issue in such governments, qualified for Soviet support.

Today all this has been largely jettisoned. The Soviet venture in Ghana fizzled with the fall of Nkrumah. The experience of Che Guevara in Bolivia and the Viet Cong in South Vietnam cast a chill over the prospects of rural guerrilla warfare. During the late 1960s, Soviet policy evolved in a more traditional, but also more formidable, direction.

Top priority is now given to the creation of client relationships with existing governments — as, in varying degree, with Cuba, India, Bangladesh, and Egypt.

Should Hanoi succeed in re-creating the former French-controlled bloc of states in Indochina, Hanoi will have been able to do so only through massive Soviet aid, and the Soviets will have established a formidable client state on the eastern rim of the Indian Ocean.

The 15-year treaty of friendship concluded by the Soviets with Iraq is an example of the new approach. The treaty contains a provision for military cooperation of an unspecified kind, and intelligence analysts point out that this is one of the techniques the Soviets are now using to funnel arms covertly to irregular forces. Thus, on one level, the Soviets are able to pursue normal state-to-state relations, while, on another level, they can funnel arms to guerrilla groups through client-state arrangements such as the ones with Iraq.

Important facilities acquired

On the first level, for example, the Soviets have acquired important facilities in Mauritius, as a corollary to a fisheries agreement. They are acquiring facilities in Hodeida in the Yemen and Berbera in Somalia.

But also, in the Persian Gulf area, the Soviets are contesting the Chinese for control over PFLOAG (the Popular Front for the Liberation of the Occupied Arabian Gulf), to which Soviet aid has recently doubled. Until recently, the Mozambique insurgency known as Frelimo was Soviet-dominated; now the Chinese are active there. In South Africa, the African National Congress is a Moscow instrument, but has a Peking-leaning rival.

In this overall double strategy, the aim is either to work through governments by making them dependent on the Soviet Union, or else to support "progressive" and anti-Western movements which may not be ideologically orthodox.

In its overall design, the strategy envisages the rapid buildup of Soviet power and influence on both the eastern and western rims of the Indian Ocean, as well as the expansion of Soviet influence elsewhere. All this is backed by a spectacular ship-building program.

When Brezhnev sits down with President Nixon, therefore, he comes as the master of a serious and highly formidable global enterprise.

Commencement endurance vile

The trouble with commencement exercises is that they commence all day long. In no field of human endeavor can one find a comparable assortment of colossal bores. The audience consists of several hundred young men and women in black gowns and mortarboards, who sit as prisoners.

I know. On three occasions, I was "Chief Bore." At two colleges and one university I was awarded an honorary doctorate in return for lecturing the kids about what life is really like—something unknown to me until I listened to what I was saying — and of how proud all their mommies and poppies must be on this glorious day.

Last hurdle

Commencement exercises are not designed for the purpose of giving the graduate his degree. There are hundreds, sometimes thousands, of students sitting like funereally draped crows trying hard to smile through the final endurance hurdle of education.

The most recent one, for me, occurred 10 days ago. When we entered the War Memorial Building, the intelligent parents had already hogged all the good seats near the exits. The music, played by the college symphonic band, was everything anyone could except on key.

The vast theater-like room was hot. Ladies used the souvenir programs to fan their checks. After most everyone was seated, the students began to file in two-by-two. They kept filing for 20 minutes.

The stage held a scimitar of chairs, on which reposed the posteriors of deans, presidents, honored guests and a P.S. (Principal Speaker). They too had to sit quietly adorned with their profound expressions, while the orchestra hammered its way through "Emperata Overture" and "Proud Heritage."

I joined in the tremendous applause when they finished, because they finished. A local rabbi was called upon to deliver the invocation. I thought he was going to bless us one and all, but he had written a little speech and, by God, he was going to deliver it.

He reminded me of the time Cardinal Cushing delivered the invocation at the inauguration of President Kennedy. The difference between the two was that this time the lectern did not catch fire.

The college president then introduced the chairman of the board of trustees. Please don't ask why. My generation plans these things to please themselves—the kids are kept out of the spotlight. Ah, but the president decided not to merely introduce. He, too, had typewritten sheets of paper.

Between the rabbi and the president, there was nothing philosophical or practical left to be said. The graduates were now armed to face life. When the chairman of the board of trustees was introduced at long last, he was, unfortunately, still able to stand and speak.

His job was to introduce the platform guests. It said so on the program. But no. He too strangled the lectern with both hands and poured his knowledge into a defenseless microphone. At least he reached the introductions: "On my far right . . . and next to him . . ."

Then the president returned to introduce the speaker. There is a pitfall in introducing a speaker, and that is to read his complete biography and punctuate it with superlatives. The president fell headfirst into the pit.

I know the speaker; I respect him. However, by the time the president completed the biography, I hoped that the address would consist of "thank you," and sit down. Not a chance. My man had it written. The cascade of words which had fallen upon the supine graduates encompassed most of the field of human knowledge, but he took off as though he was speaking in the middle of a stickup.

He didn't speak it. He read at high speed. According to my unsympathetic lights, he did a 35-minute lecture in 14 minutes. When he ended a dissertation on what life is going to be like, he was the recipient of a hearty round of applause for speed.

But wait. There was more. Two deans made a "Presentation of Candidates." The president of the college then conferred degrees en masse.

The longest part was yet to come. Row by row each student was called on stage to receive his degree and a handshake from the president. There were bursts of applause for those who were recipients of high honors, to the embarrassment of the many who didn't make it. They received no applause.

Letters TO THE EDITOR

Editorial no prize-winner?

Editor, The Record:

We agree that "the best government is that which governs least."

We hope you'll agree that the best public service a newspaper can give is to tell the truth, even if it's good news about the county.

Your May 21, 1973 editorial will not win a prize in the annual press evaluations because it was based on three unfactual points:

The first was that we were reluctant to pay for the burial of an "indigent" and, therefore, that the deceased was detained from burial pending our decision. The fact is that all deceased are buried regardless of receipt of reimbursement by undertakers, and that our obligation to ascertain whether or not the subject was indeed "indigent" was fulfilled and, as a result, the Social Security Administration will reimburse the county for at least $250 of the $350 the board unanimously voted to pay on Tuesday, May 15, six days before your untimely editorial.

The second point is that we "thought the table was a good place for the $10,000 request from the library." Absolutely!! Regulations of Treasury Dept. forbid spending prior to due public notice and time for public comment. Are you suggesting we should violate the regulations?

The third point you made is that you asked for action. It escapes us as to who campaigned with a promise of action for the sake of action.

We can assure all the readers that we will continue to search out whether or not the taxpayers of this county should pay each and every bill presented, regardless of the nature of the bill; when a bill can be shared by another source, we will insist upon it. Neither will any "big decisions" be made before we are prepared to justify same to the public, in great detail.

We supported your efforts for open meetings, which we've always held. Now we urge that you read our minutes from those meetings prior to publicly taking us to task for duties which we have properly performed. Better yet, come to the meetings or at least telephone us before risking misinforming the readers.

Scores Pleasant Valley coaches

Editor, The Record:

I have read your newspaper and letters for over 20 years and have wanted to write in regard to school affairs at Pleasant Valley High School many times, but because I was for some time an employe of the school as a part-time secretary, because my husband has been on the School Board for over 20 years, and for the sake of my four children attending Pleasant Valley, I did not mail any of my letters.

Now I am retired and I believe my last son can weather the storm; I want to give you my opinion about this last situation at Pleasant Valley.

I wonder if the 10 coaches ever considered that if they had not delivered an ultimatum — "We're going to get our way or we're going to quit and leave them without a sports program" — how different the situation could have been. I know the problems could have been solved to benefit the students, and, after all, aren't they the ones who are most important?

When you quote one of the coaches as saying, "What we're doing is sticking to what we've been teaching the kids," I wonder if they realize how much damage has already been done by their whole attitude toward the administration and the Board of Directors in this day and age when we are trying so hard to gain the respect and understanding of our children.

We have had three sons in sports and every one of them respected and looked up to their coaches, and this is the way I wanted it. Now I'm wondering if these present coaches will expect of their students the same respect when they have taken such a stand and put the board and administration in such a poor light.

I can speak from authority that there are no more interested men in sports and the sports program and the children at Pleasant Valley than the members of the Pleasant Valley School Board.

'Treasure of Sierra Madre'

WASHINGTON — A desert stash of old Mexican gold ingots worth tens of millions has been reported to skeptical authorities who fear it may be a hoax.

The king's ransom in ancient bullion and Aztec-era artifacts was described to lawyer F. Lee Bailey by a mysterious middleman three months ago. He told Bailey the gold had been carted north perhaps hundreds of years ago and hidden in a cave on what is now the White Sands proving grounds in New Mexico.

Now the gold has been rediscovered, claimed the middleman. He was authorized by a consortium, he said, to try through Bailey to gain legal possession to the treasure.

The middleman, a business executive, said the consortium would deliver the gold to the government. The consortium promised to pay taxes on the tons of gold, which might come to 50 per cent of its value, and sell the rest for their own profit.

Bailey thwarted

If this "treasure of the Sierra Madre" turned out to be stolen and the rightful owners established a valid claim, then the consortium would agree to give up the entire trove.

Skeptical, Bailey flew secretly in his Lear Jet to El Paso, Tex., supposedly near where the cache is located. But once he met with his new clients, they thwarted his efforts to visit the treasure cave.

They feared Bailey's entry to the White Sands government reservation might be an illegal act which, because he was their lawyer, would jeopardize their case.

Bailey took his story to Tod Hullin, a White House aide, who wanted some proof of the tale. Obligingly, Bailey's clients sent him a gleaming gold-colored bar about 3½ inches long, and promised him hundreds more to prove to the government their offer was no hoax. With this in hand, Bailey was referred to the Treasury Department.

Treasury experts assayed the bar at 60 per cent pure, much less than is possible with modern refining. But some ancient ingots had this low gold content. The bar, at least, was no hoax.

Talks bog down

But the talks have bogged down. Treasury officials reasoned that if there were gold on White Sands, then it already belonged to the government. Under present international agreements, the gold could not be used in world trade or sold by the Treasury for hard cash.

As one official told us, "there was all this secrecy and tedium about the deal. Besides, it's an unbelievable story." On May 17, the Treasury Department returned the ingot and told Bailey in a brusque private letter that "the Treasury has no interest in proceeding further with this matter."

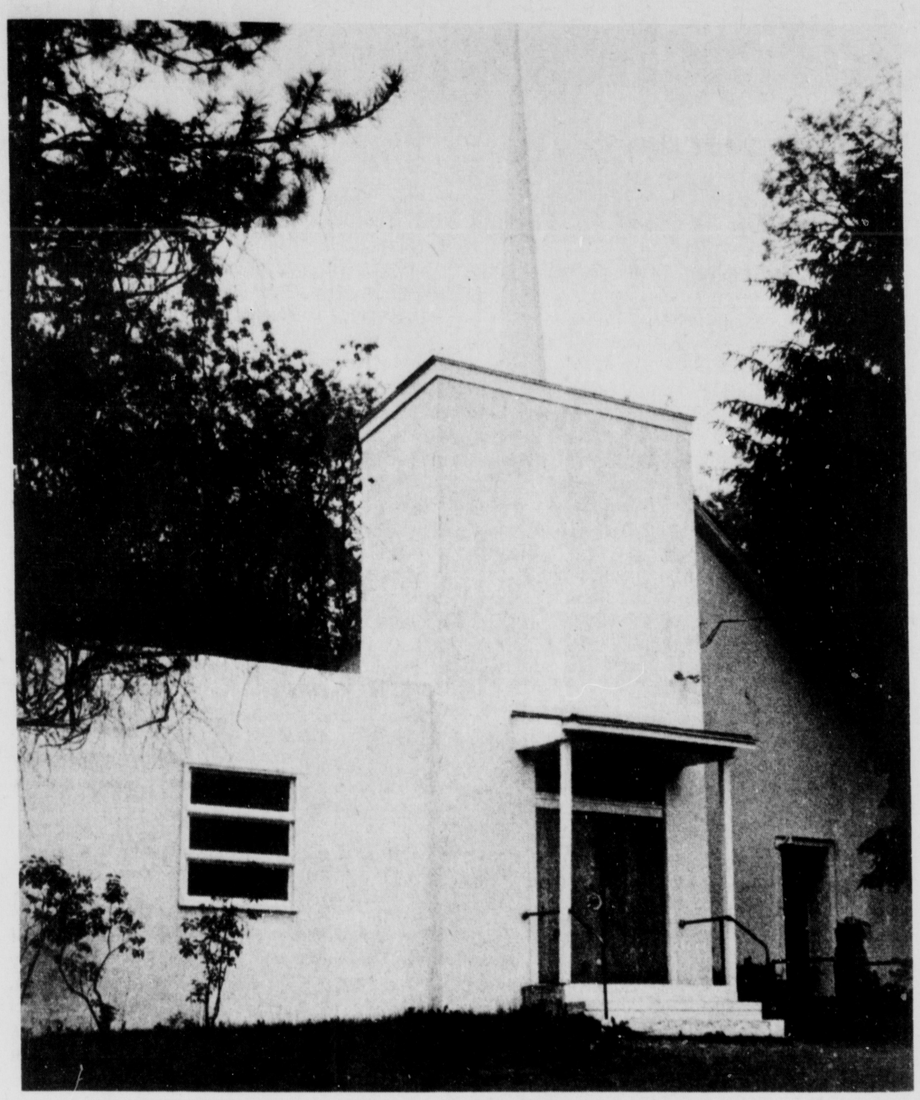

Bailey has had no more success with the Army, which controls entry to White Sands. Army Installations Deputy George Brazier told us that missile research is going on which "cannot be interrupted everytime somebody comes to us with a gold gleam in his eye." Numerous similar stories are brought to the Army and so far no one has produced gold, he said.

Bailey, meanwhile, argues that the government has nothing to lose by making a deal. And, he points out, the only way to find out whether the gold treasure is a hoax is for someone to snip through the red tape.

Washington whirl

GLORIFYING WEINBERGER: The Department of Health, Education and Welfare is hiring new hands to glorify Secretary Caspar Weinberger even as he slices deeply into the services for the poor and sick. In recent months, HEW has hired Scott Peters, a former public affairs man from the Committee to Reelect the President, plus other publicity consultants at $138, $120 and $100 a day. The hirings came even as Weinberger fired or transferred several public affairs officers who were not certified Republicans.

NAVY SHUFFLE: The Navy tried to transfer two highly-trained petty officers out of the country in the middle of their federal suit against the Navy. The petty officers, Nicholas Larionoff and Paul Boudreau, sued the Navy, claiming they were bilked of promised re-enlistment bonuses totaling between $2,800 and $3,400. The Navy contested the case but, meanwhile, ordered Larionoff to Iceland and Boudreau to Puerto Rico where their suit would be difficult to press. After our query to the Navy, both transfers were postponed.

Church to fete birthday

EAST STROUDSBURG — The Beakleyville Baptist Church will celebrate its 130th birthday with an old-fashioned all-day meeting Sunday to which everyone is invited.

A birthday cake with 130 candles will be lighted at the afternoon service at 2 o'clock when birthday gifts in the form of money in brightly wrapped packages will be piled around the cake. Hand written records dated 1843 will be on display.

The birthday celebration will begin with Sunday school at 9:45 a.m. and church at 11 p.m. A picnic lunch will be held in the Sunday school room with everyone invited to bring a light lunch and join in the celebration.

Anyone who has attended Beakleyville during the last 100 years will be especially welcome, members note.

Church unit buys nursing home

ALLENTOWN — The Presbyterian Homes of Central Pennsylvania has purchased the Central Park Convalescent and Nursing Residence in Allentown at a cost of $1.25 million. The three story building, the 12th such facility run by the Presbyterian Homes, will operate on a non-profit, non-denominational basis.

"Central Park will be our largest home, and the first in the Lehigh Valley area," according to Rev. A. Schartner, executive director of the Homes. The second and third floors will be used for guests requiring nursing services. The first level will be for residential guests, with approximately 15 persons assigned to single rooms.

Of the $1 million statewide campaign for "Share for Elderly Care," the Lehigh Presbytery has accepted a goal of $300,000. The Stroudsburg First Presbyterian Church, a member of Lehigh Presbytery, is striving to collect $11,000 of that $300,000.

The Stroudsburg campaign opened Sunday, May 6, and $3,439 in pledges had been received by Thursday, May 24. Reverend Ronald Rathje says that the campaign is being conducted "by mail and through appeals from the pulpit, and will continue until the goal is met."

The mortgage for the Central Park facility will absorb $200,000 of the Lehigh Presbytery's goal. The remaining $100,000 will be used in a program designed to help elderly people in the Lehigh Valley area to remain in their own homes for as long as they are able. Possible aspects of this program include Meals-on-Wheels for shut-ins.

Purchase of the Central Park building, one of the most modern in the state, was made largely possible through a $225,000 bequest from the late Ellan J. "Nellie" Lewis, a Catasauqua School District teacher.

Wesleyan concert scheduled

STROUDSBURG — The "Taylor Family Singers" will present a Sacred Concert at 7 p.m. Sunday at the Wesleyan Church, 915 Fifth St., Stroudsburg.

Before their conversion, the group members used their talents in dance bands and night clubs.

Using drums and guitars as background music, they present the gospel in song and music to the delight of their audiences.

Members of the Wesleyan Church together with Pastor Drury extend a cordial invitation to attend this special feature.

College student

HACKETTSTOWN, N.J. — Miss Collene Connolly, niece of Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Mraz, Tannersville, has been accepted at Centenary College for Women for September 1973. A senior at Pocono Mountain High School, she plans to enroll in the radio and TV program.

Northern New Jersey Methodists to meet

MADISON, N. J. — The 116th Annual Conference of Northern New Jersey United Methodist will be held on the campus of Drew University, Madison, June 3-6. Most sessions will be held in the Baldwin Auditorium. Representatives of 87,000 members in 259 churches will attend.

New Jersey Bishop Prince A. Taylor Jr. is to convene an executive meeting of clergy Sunday at 6:30 p.m., while some 300 laymen meet separately to discuss "The New Role of the Laity Since General Conference." Young people from seven North Jersey counties, and Rockland County, New York, will enjoy "religious rock" and workshops on youth programming during the afternoon.

Emphasis on "Discipleship '73" is to be voiced in a series of evening pulpit messages by Dr. Chester A. Pennington, professor of preaching and worship at Iliff School of Theology, Denver, and former pastor in this state. Bishop W. Ralph Ward of New York will deliver the sermon at the Ordination Ritual Wednesday night, June 6, in the Chatham Church.

Much of the time during plenary sessions will be devoted to shaping up the new structural form of Conference organization. Workshops on Church and Society, Discipleship, Global Ministries, Higher Education and Ministry, Supportive Services, and Finance and Administration will sift dozens of reports and proposals before submitting them to the entire Conference membership for action.

Pastoral and special appointments are to be announced Wednesday, June 6, at 3:30 p.m.

Joseph Resists Potiphar's Wife

And she caught him by his garment, saying, Lie with me: and he left his garment in her hand, and fled.

—Genesis 39:12

The Ishmeelites who had bought Joseph from his jealous brothers sold him, in turn, to Potiphar, the Egyptian officer of Pharaoh's guard. Though a slave, Joseph caught Potiphar's fancy and he made him overseer of his house. The lad had also caught the eye of Potiphar's wife, whose yearning for him led her to attempt his seduction. But Joseph refused the temptation and fled her presence—but not before she, in anger, had torn his garment from him. When her lord returned, she showed the garment as evidence of Joseph's disloyalty and Potiphar, disillusioned, put Joseph in prison.

Churches set summer service

TANNERSVILLE — Two of the churches of the Tannersville Parish United Church of Christ — Grace, Tannersville and Salem, Pocono Lake — will again have services every Sunday during the summer.

The services in Grace Church will begin this Sunday and continue through Sunday, August 26. Services in Salem Church will begin on Sunday, June 24 and continue through Sunday, September 2.

Conducting all of these extra services this summer will be Thomas Burlington. A recent graduate of East Stroudsburg State College, Burlington is also serving as chaplain at the Tobyhanna State Park. In the Fall he will begin Seminary.

Times of service are: Grace Church, 10:30 a.m., and Salem Church, 11 a.m.

S. Sterling Methodists set show

SOUTH STERLING — "Around The World" is the theme selected for the Annual Variety Show to be presented Wednesday, July 11, by the Sunday School of the South Sterling United Methodist Church, South Sterling.

At a meeting held recently at the home of Mrs. Bart Barnes plans were finalized. Parts were selected and rehearsals will be held in the near future.

The show is an original program written and planned by the committee which includes Bart Barnes, Elaine Muller, Beverly Gilpin, Carlene Stoddard, Robert Hanor and Steve Hanor.

Portland Baptist presents concert

PORTLAND — The Portland Baptist Church will present a musical concert at 7 p.m. Sunday. The group, the Messengers, are from Rockaway, N. J.

The Messengers have been touring the eastern part of the United States presenting the gospel message in testimony and song. Admission is free and everyone is invited to come. The Portland Baptist Church is located on Delaware Avenue in Portland.

It's Your Life!
Make the Most of It.....
When You Work--When You Play--When You Pray

Many of us for the first time are realizing the importance of time, and the fact that it can be wasted or used wisely. Hours of leisure and recreation help a man do his job better . . . time spent in prayer helps build up a man spiritually and makes his life fuller. Everyone owes it to himself to attend the church of his faith regularly. Keep in touch with the true doctrine of simple faith by coming to church next Sunday . . . and don't forget to bring along your family or a friend.

Boiling economy simmers down

NEW YORK (UPI) — Signs appeared this week that the boiling U.S. economy was entering a simmering stage.

The government's index of leading economic indicators, a barometer of broad movements in the economy, took a sharp plunge in April, its first in two-and-a-half years.

While the decline was less than a percentage point, the figure contrasted sharply with the advances of the previous months, which ranged from 1.6 to 1.9 per cent.

At the same time the Commerce Department reported factory orders in April dipped for the first time in six months, and the National Machine Tool Builders Association reported that orders for the month eased from the month before.

The slip in the index led Herbert Stein, chairman of the White House Council of Economic Advisers, to comment that "the flood of inflation" is subsiding.

A Treasury Department official predicted that the "real" growth of the economy—Gross National Product minus inflation—would diminish in this quarter and continue declining for the rest of the year.

But Herman I. Liebling, deputy director of the treasury's office of financial analysis, said he saw no recession either this year or next. With the trend in corporate capital spending on the rise, Liebling said "it would be a rarity for a capital goods boom to be accompanied by a recession."

The drop in the economic index was hardly surprising to some private economists. Richard Everett, of Chase Manhattan Bank, noted it had risen "very vigorously" in recent months and a downturn was inevitable.

Corporate expansion plans showed no signs of abating.

The Conference Board, a private business group said a check of the country's top 1,000 manufacturers showed that appropriations for plant and equipment during the first quarter jumped to a record $9.51 billion, up almost 50 per cent from the year-ago period.

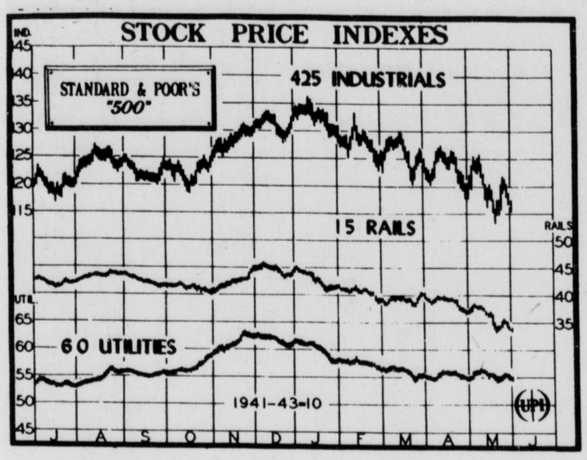

All the talk of an economic breather ahead apparently has failed to rattle the consuming public.

The major retail stores said sales were still strong in the four-week reporting period ending this week, with Momtgomery Ward & Co. showimg an increase of more than 26 per cent. Other hefty gains were reported by Sears, Roebuck & Co. J. C. Penney Co., F. W. Woolworth Co., and several others.

Credit got another turn of the screw.

Figures from the Federal Reserve Bank of New York showed that the reserve position of the country's commercial banks was the tightest in half a century. The net borrowed reserves of the banks—money they borrow from the FED minus their reserves there—averaged $2.2 billion, up from $1.6 billion the week before.

Short-term interest rates moved up and some analysts suggested an increase in the bank prime rate was in the wings, possibly up to 8 per cent. But the banks took no such action this week.

Just Between Us—

By Bobby Westbrook

Well I finally made it — just under the wire. It seems that everywhere I've gone I've heard people talking about the lunches at the Vo-Tech School at Bartonsville where the students not only get practice in gourmet and short order cooking, serving and billing, but the public gets great meals.

But like those horses hitched to a treadmill, I never was able to get out of harness long enough to investigate for myself, until yesterday, which was the last day they'll be served.

So, while it won't do you a lot of good until school opens next fall, I'll report that I was very impressed. In addition to lobster bisque, sandwiches and salads with a choice of four dressings you could have your choice of "skirt" steak cooked to order, pork chop chow mein with egg roll, or haddock stuffed with crabmeat at prices ranging from $1 to $1.50.

There is carpet on the floor and round tables and pleasant people you can join at them. The kids are meticulous about serving from the proper side and getting the orders straight.

We parked at the wrong place and came in through the Graphic Arts Department which is full of the same kind of complicated computer type machinery as baffles me in the back shop and wandered around through the shop where a boat and trailer was being repaired and through the plumbing and electrical section before we finally got to the dining room.

And on the way out we stopped by the greenhouse where they were having a clearout sale and I bought as many geraniums, impatiens plants, and petunias as I could carry. Remind me to do this more properly next fall.

Mr. and Mrs. Gary N. Huffman

Brenda Detrick bride of Gary N. Huffman

EAST STROUDSBURG — Miss Brenda Sue Detrick, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Elmer L. Detrick of 358 Stroudsburg, became the bride of Gary Norman Huffman, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. Carlyle Huffman, Marshalls Creek, on May 5.

Rev. Harold C. Eaton performed the double ring ceremony in the East Stroudsburg Methodist Church.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a floor length gown of Chantilly lace with a basque bodice with Victorian neckline and long bishop sleeves. The gown was embroidered with sequins and seed pearls. The bouffant ruffled skirt swept to a chapel train. She wore a matching Juilet cap and veil also trimmed in sequins and pearls.

Mrs. Donna Albright of Virginia was matron of honor. She wore a light blue floor length gown of silk organza and a dotted Swiss pinafore apron to match. She wore a white picture hat trimmed in blue and carried a white fireside basket of pink, blue, yellow and green daisies.

Miss Marae Weiss of Stroudsburg was maid of honor. She wore a light pink floor length gown of similar material and a pink pinafore apron. She also wore a white picture hat trimmed in pink and carried a similar basket of flowers.

Bridesmaids were Miss Sandy Gottchalk of Marshalls Creek, Miss Mari Blewitt of East Stroudsburg, Mrs. Joan Decker of Marshalls Creek, Miss Kay Kline of Wind Gap. They wore gowns of the same style in colors of green and yellow and also carried fireside baskets and wore white picture hats.

The flower girl, April Lynn Cobb, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Paul Cobb Jr., of Stroudsburg, wore a similar gown of pink with a white picture hat and also carried a fireside basket.

William Albright of Virginia was best man. Ushers were Elmer L. Detrick, brother of the bride of East Stroudsburg; Jay Huffman and Robert Huffman, brothers of the bride groom; Steve Fischer and Robert Decker, all of Marshalls Creek.

Jeffrey J. Huffman, son of Mr. and Mrs. Jay Huffman of Marshalls Creek, was ring bearer.

The church was decoarted with pink, blue, yellow and green daisies and the pews with white bows. Miss Debbie Meyers was organist and William Dimmick, brother-in-law of the bridegroom, was soloist, singing "One Hand, One Heart," "O Perfect Love," "Impossible Dream," and "The Lords Prayer."

A reception for 200 guests was held at Mountain Lake House, Marshalls Creek. The buffet and ice carving of a wedding bell and love birds was put on by Jose Engroba, chef at Mountain Lake House. A four-tier cake made by Toni Gargone of Mountain Lake House, was trimmed in a staircase holding the bridesmaids and ushers in their colors, which lead to a garden gate at the top to the bride and groom.

Paul Cobb of the Pocono Candle Shop in East Stroudsburg, decorated all the tables with candle centerpieces.

The music for dancing was provided by the Pocono Playboys.

The bride's mother wore a street length assemble of light blue with silver accessories and a corsage of yellow sweetheart roses. The bridegroom's mother also wore a street length dress of blue with white accessories and a corsage of yellow sweetheart roses.

The grandmother of the bride wore a dress of blue and gray with a corsage of white carnations. The grandmother of the bridegroom wore a dress of navy blue with a corsage of white carnations.

The bride is a graduate of East Stroudsburg High School and is employed with the Engineering Dept. of the Bell Telephone Co. in Stroudsburg.

Her husband is also a graduate of East Stroudsburg High School and Williamsport Area Community College. He is employed by his father as an electrician.

They spent a week motor touring through the New England States and are now living in Marshalls Creek.

Youth group to deal with recreation lag

POCONO PINES — Instead of complaining that "There's nothing for young people to do around here," there is a group in Tobyhanna Twp. which has organized to find and publicize the recreational facilities that are available, to improve them, and to find out what else is needed.

Calling themselves the Tobyhanna Recreation Rhinos, the group held its first meeting at the Tobyhanna Elementary Center, Pocono Pines, on May 30. The group is being organized with the help of the Monroe County Extension Service.

For their first project, the Rhinos want to clean up a local park. They are looking for new members and need leaders. Young people interested in joining may call Joel Miller at 646-2049 or Kathy Silkowski at 646-3182.

Anyone who could be a leader may call Tom Shepstone at the Cooperative Extension office, 421-2600.

The organizing committee included Charles Rulapaugh Jr., Joel Miller, Jody Miller, Teri Wilson, John Bush, Walter Lewis, Lisa Fahringer, and Kathy Silkowski.

The next meeting will be held on June 13 with the place and time to be announced.

Tobyhanna Twp. drive over quota

POCONO PINES — The Cancer Drive in Tobyhanna Twp. again went over the top this year with $1,021.45 collected in Blakeslee, Pocono Lake, Pocono Pines and part of Pocono Summit. This is more than 100 over the last year's total and topped the quota assigned to the area.

The drive was directed by Mrs. C. Willis Dunlap and Mrs. Ralph Dunlap as co-chairmen. They were assisted by the following workers:

Mrs. Edna Waltz, Mrs. Kathryn Knowles, Mrs. Mary Smith and Mrs. Alberta Hayes of Blakeslee;

Mrs. Mary Warner, Mrs. Richard Smith, Mrs. Henry Bockelman, Mrs. Robert Selig, Mrs. Carl Selig Jr., Mrs. Edward Newberry, Mrs. Lyda Murphy, Mrs. Mary Beth Keiper, Mrs. Maude Keiper and Mrs. Jeanette Henning of Pocono Lake;

Mrs. Rhoda ter Muelen, Mrs. Patricia Reed, Mrs. Sadie Christman, Mrs. Anna Smith, Mrs. Eunice Slagle, Mrs. Joan Knecht, Mrs. Nancy Lamberton, Mrs. Judson Briggs and Mrs. Michael Kovich of Pocono Pines and Mrs. Paul Hoffman of Pocono Summit.

The chairmen of the cancer crusade expressed appreciation for the work of the teams as well as the generosity of the contributors.

Hospital Aux. luncheon Tues.

EAST STROUDSBURG — The annual luncheon meeting of the General Hospital Auxiliary will be held Tuesday, June 12, at 12:30 p.m. at the Holiday Inn, East Stroudsburg.

Installation of officers and annual reports will highlight the meeting to follow the luncheon. Reservations for members and guests should be made with Mrs. Peg Hauser, 421-5578.

Mothers picnic

STROUDSBURG — The YMCA Mothers Service Group will hold its annual picnic, weather permitting, at the home of Mrs. John Baujan, 467 North Eighth St., Stroudsburg on Monday, June 4, at 6 p.m. In case of rain, the picnic will be postponed until the following Monday.

Artists to try again

DELAWARE WATER GAP — When rain canceled the second day of the Outdoor Arts and Crafts Show in Delaware Water Gap last weekend, the artists and craftsmen decided to return Sunday, June 3, to try again.

The Antoine Dutot School and Museum, sponsor of the outdoor show, will again feature an exhibit of the pictures and literary works of photographer-historian, Dr. Wallace Nutting.

Lynette S. Tucker

Tucker-Ott engagement announced

BANGOR — Mr. and Mrs. Merlin G. Tucker of 703 Snyder St., Bangor, announce the engagement of their daughter, Lynette S. Tucker to Randall S. Ott Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Randall J. Ott of Delaware Water Gap.

The bride-elect is attending East Stroudsburg State College and is employed at Howard Johnson's, Delaware Water Gap. Her fiance, an alumni of Stroudsburg High School, is employed by Swank Service Co.

They plan to marry in May 1974.

Summer calendar shrinks

STROUDSBURG — The Clearing House Calendar has shrunk practically to the vanishing point during the summer despite the multitude of benefits planned by church groups, and fire company auxiliaries for the summer months.

The calendar, maintained as a public service by the Woman's Club of the Stroudsburgs, is intended to list just such special events seeking public support. Events may be listed, without charge, by calling or dropping a card to the chairman, Mrs. Robert Hellmann, Clearview Lane, Stroudsburg, 421-3360.

Mrs. Hellmann releases the dates to The Pocono Record at the beginning of each month. So far, the only dates listed are:

June

Saturday, 2: Pocono Mountains Music Parents bazaar and festival at high school in Swiftwater, 4 to 8 p.m.

Thursday, 28: Pocono Raceweek Ball, Fernwood, Bushkill, cocktails, 6:30 p.m.

July

No listing.

August

Wednesday, 8, 9 and 10: Pocono Mountains Antique Show, sponsored by General Hospital Auxiliary, East Stroudsburg High School.

New York's Voice of Broadway

NEW YORK — Leslie Caron says she'll just work in Europe from now on: More roles for stars over 40. . .Miss Black Universe gets prettier gals than other beauty contests — because they take marrieds as well as singles. . .Sick-freak rock star Alice Cooper (doubtless male) proclaims "Decadence is healthy!" Like cancer?. . .Al Pacino and Gene Hackman didn't get along during the "Scarecrow" filming. First time Gene didn't get along with anyone. Pacino became a star too fast . . . Probably because of the communications gap, the flick was finished 15 days early.

Lena Horne says she wants to go back to school. Admires Joanne Woodward's student status: George Gershwin once asked French Composer Ravel to teach him. Ravel asked how much Gershwin earned that year. Quarter of a million, George said. "You teach me," Ravel said.

Lucille Ball says Desi Jr. is a reckless spender, and she'll make him wait for his trust fund "Until he learns the value of a dollar. He's just like his father". . .Lucy's one of the world's most candid kids: when she and Desi Sr. busted up, she told me, "I always gave Desi anything he ever wanted. Now he wants a divorce. I'll give him that, too."

Woolworth Heir Anthony Hubbard, 45, stepped out of England's grim Dorchester Prison and was greeted by ex-model Anne Hawkins, 24, and a brand new $24,000 German sportscar. He'd served his 15-months sentence for "indecent assault" on ex-girl friend Rosemary Bird who'd served her three-year non-prison sentence as Hubbard's live-in pal. Anne Hawkins first met the multi-heir last April when he was out on $20,000 bail.

Bobby Vinton bought Cary Grant's H'wood manse. . .The male-chauvinist Bobby Riggs tennis syndrome was duplicated at Wimbledon: retired tennis competitor Reg Bennett took 45 minutes to defeat English seeded star Virginia Wade 6-2, 6-1. It's a trend.

The price of showbiz ham also is inflating: press clipping services raised their prices.

Howard Hughes' sports-network is laying miles of cables at the Mt. Airy Lodge in the Poconos for championship tennis and golf matches. . .The great Jack Hawkins who lost his voice in successful cancer surgery a few years ago has decided not to try more surgery which might restore his speech, merely the finest on the English-speaking stage and screen. Betimes, Jack's starting a new film, "The Tamarind Seed," with Julie Andrews and Omar Sharif.

Columnist Leonard Lyons' son Jeffery, in his dad's journalistic footsteps as a movie-critic on TV, wed Judy Katcher in Chicago over the weekend. We were at Jeff's confirmation, and our congrats to Leonard and his Sylvia and to Judy and Jeff. The kids will honeymoon in Venice. . .Where they might bump into former British P.M. Harold Macmillan who just took his daughter Mrs. Catherine Amery to recuperate from recent surgery. . .Dontcha love the name of the British gent investigating the latest sex scandal oveh theh — Lovewell. . .And the nobles caught in flagranti — both of whom deplored John Profumo's similar sex-bust ten years ago. Bang-up politics, as the strange bedfellows turned out last time.

Ann Landers

No angel at home

Dear Ann Landers: The column about "house devils and street angels" hit me where I live. Everyone who knows me socially considers me very easy-going. They all say I have a beautiful disposition, unflappable — but it's only my "street angel" facade. At home I'm a different person and I hate myself for it.

I am married to a wonderful man. He is kind and generous. I couldn't be luckier. We have an attractive, well-furnished home and two great sons. I should be thanking God every day for my blessings. But I find myself yelling at the eight-year-old for no good reason and I've been petty and mean to my husband more times than I care to think about. I wake up in the morning and tell myself, "Today will be different." But it isn't.

This is a genuine plea for help, Ann. I wasn't always this way. What is the reason for my lack of control and this depressed state? I eat constantly and am overweight. I've tried talking to my doctor about it but he tells me how lucky I am and that 95 per cent of his patients would give anything to change places with me.

I'd give anything to be happy and laugh like I used to. Can you please help me?

House Devil

Dear H.D.: The fact that you recognize the problem and want to do something about it bodes well. Go back to that doctor who told you how lucky you are and tell him you know you are lucky but you want to do something about your uncontrollable temper and periodic depressions before your luck runs out. Ask him where you can get a mental-health evaluation. It may be that an initial exploration and a few ventilation sessions will set you straight. Obviously something is bothering you. (It might be menopausal or neurological.) When you find out what it is you can then go to work on how to deal with it.

Confidential to A Nutty Scaidy Cat: You aren't a nut. You are frightened because you are unfamiliar with the facts. Every surgical procedure has inherent risks, but the operation you need is not "dangerous." Your physician can give you the reassurance you need. Talk to him.

Boy friend OK

By Jean Adams

NOT NOW: (Q.) My mother says I cannot date boys until I am 15. She tells me that I should now look at boys as just friends, not as boy friends.

I am 13½ and it will be a long time until I am 15. I like this boy who is 14½. He has given me a beautiful necklace. I am proud of it but am afraid to show it to my parents.

He has asked me several times to go out with him but I have to say no because I don't know how to talk to my parents about him.

Too young in Texas

(A.) You are too young to date but you are not too young to have a boy friend.

In slipping around and hiding your friendship for him you are not being fair to him, to yourself or to your parents.

Tell them about him. Be sure they understand he is special. Ask them to let you invite him over to your house to meet them.

It is more important for you to be free to have friends in your own home than to try to abide by some hard and fast rule about no dates until a specific time.

LASHES: (Q.) I am worried because I am missing some eyelashes on my lower lid. I had the measles and had an eruption on one lid. The lashes in that spot came out and have never grown back. How can I keep it from looking so plain and bare?

15-in Florida

(A.) Try a very thin line of liquid liner immediately below your lower lashes. Use a very small brush and choose a subtle color. Thinly outline the upper lids as well.

When you learn to get it just right, the effect will be quite attractive, and will minimize any gap or gaps in your lashes.

The bidding:

North	East	South	West
2♥	3♦	4♣	Dble

Opening lead — seven of diamonds.

This deal occurred in a pair event played in Majorca. When an Italian pair (Avarelli and Bianchi) were playing North-South against a Swedish pair, the bidding went as shown.

Bianchi's four club bid may seem peculiar, but in fact it was based on his partner's two heart bid — which conventionally designated a heart-club hand. West doubled four clubs — a tempting but doubtful move under the circumstances — and led the seven of diamonds.

East won with the king and returned a low spade to West's jack and dummy's ace.

Declarer thereupon cashed the A-K-Q-J of hearts, discarding his three spade losers, ruffed a spade, then ruffed a diamond in dummy to produce the following position:

North
♠4
♥9
♣Q 7 6

West ♣A 10 9 8 5 — East ♠Q 10 ♦A J 9

South
♦10 8
♣K J 4

Bianchi had lost only one trick and required three of the remaining five tricks to make the contract. This task did not prove too difficult, since he knew from the bidding and play that West's remaining five cards were all trumps.

He ruffed dummy's spade with the jack and West could do no better than overruff with the ace and return the ten. Bianchi took the ten with the king and played a diamond, forcing West to ruff with the eight to prevent dummy from winning cheaply with the seven. Declarer countered this move by discarding a heart from dummy and so won the last two tricks with the Q-7 of trumps to make four clubs doubled.

Obituaries

Mrs. Anastasia Gesek

SCHENECTADY, N.Y. — Mrs. Anastasia Gesek, 81, of 347 Fillmore Ave., Schenectady, N.Y., died Thursday following a lengthy illness. She was the widow of Marcel P. Gesek.

Born in Poland, she came to the United States in 1890. She was a member of St. Adalbert Roman Catholic Church, Schenectady.

She is survived by three daughters, Mrs. Edward Askew, Schenectady, Mrs. Bradley Place, with whom she resided in Schenectady, and Mrs. Richard Riley, Delanson; five sons, Stanislaus, Albany, Clemens P., Stroudsburg, and Julius, Aloyius and Ralph, all of Schenectady; a brother, Michael Payst; 15 grandchildren, and one great-grandchild.

A Mass of Resurrection will be celebrated Monday morning in St. Adalbert Church, Crane Street.

Viewing will be from 7 to 9 p.m. Sunday.

Burial will be in St. Adalbert's Cemetery, Carmen Road.

The Light Funeral Home, 1428 State St., Schenectady, is in charge of arrangements.

Michael J. Wright

STROUDSBURG — Michael J. Wright, 81, of 37 Stofflet St., Stroudsburg, died Wednesday at his home. He was the husband of Frances (Emerick) Wright, at home.

Born in Wilkes-Barre, he was a son of the late Jacob and Elizabeth (Tobola) Wright. He spent his early life in Wilkes-Barre, and resided in Edgewater, N.J. area for several years before moving to Stroudsburg in 1956 when he retired.

He was a veteran of World War I, having served in the U.S. Army Expeditionary Forces in France with the 42nd (Rainbow) Division. He fought in the battles of Champage-Marne, Aisne-Marne, St. Mihiel and the Meuse-Argonne. He had been gassed and wounded for which he had received the Purple Heart and the Cross of War.

In addition to his widow, he is survived by a daughter, Mrs. Robert Haven, Trenton, N.J., who is presently on a year long cruise around the world; four brothers, Stanley, Jack, Raymond and Joseph, all of Wilkes-Barre; two sisters, Mrs. Margaret Huffman, Wilkes-Barre and Mrs. Frances Kmiec, Bloomfield, N.J.

Funeral services will be held at 11 a.m. Tuesday in the William H. Clark Funeral Home, 1003 Main St., Stroudsburg.

Viewing will be from 10 a.m. to 11 a.m. Tuesday at the funeral home.

Burial will be in St. Mary's Cemetery, Wilkes-Barre.

College to honor scientist

NEW WILMINGTON — Dr. William J. Thomas will be one of five persons honored today at Westminster College. The college will confer distinguished alumni citations.

Thomas, of Mount Pocono, is a microbiologist with Merrell-National Laboratories and head of a research team that developed the only vaccine effective in combating the Venezuelan encephalomyelitis epidemic in horses in the southern U.S.

He joined Merrell-National in 1958 as a microbiologist and initially was involved in new approaches to tissue culture research.

In 1962, he became senior research virologist assigned to a National Institute of Health contract for development of adenovirus vaccine.

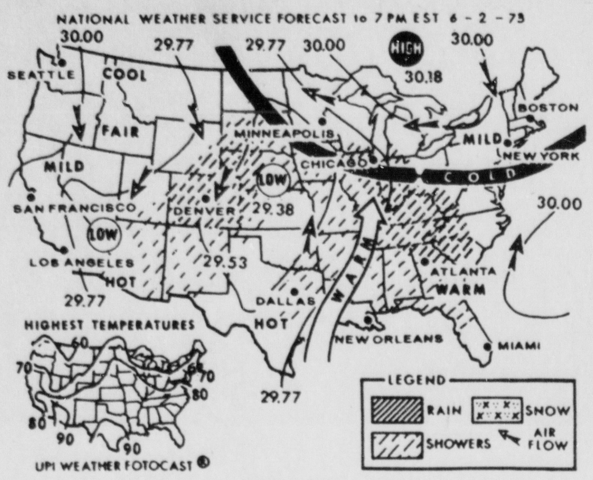

Two years later, he was promoted to group leader and assigned to the Laboratories Governmental Research Development Program, aimed at developing or improving vaccines for use against rare and exotic diseases.

He earned his M.S. degree from the University of Maryland and Ph. D. at the University of Pennsylvania. A U.S. Navy veteran, he is member of the American Society of Microbiology.

Event changed

MOUNT POCONO — Children's Day at Mount Pocono Methodist Church will be held Sunday. The event had originally been scheduled for June 10.

Miss Smith wins first honor prize

EAST STROUDSBURG — Miss Helen E. Smith, secretary to President Darrell Holmes at East Stroudsburg State College, has been named the first recipient of the Alumni Association President's Honor Award presented on Alumni Day.

The award was presented by Alumni Association President Betty C. Henrie.

Miss Smith received the award for outstanding work done at the institution during her 42 years of service. The award has been established by the Alumni Association Board of Directors to honor outstanding employes of the college.

While a student at Stroudsburg High School, Miss Smith was active in athletics and academic activities. She graduated with honors, receiving the Egbert Medal, the highest overall award given at the school.

After graduation, she served at the information desk of the First Stroudsburg National Bank. At the college, Miss Smith was appointed as a receiving clerk in the business office and was later appointed as payroll clerk. She has served as secretary to the president under four different presidents at East Stroudsburg.

McIntyre garners art award

EAST STROUDSBURG — John M. McIntyre, chairman of the East Stroudsburg State College art department, was awarded a critics choice citation in the 38th annual juried exhibition of the Lehigh Art Alliance.

The exhibition contains 51 works by 41 artists, and selections were made from a group of 105 entries by 56 artists.

Assistant Professor McIntyre's entry, "Syntax,", is a mixed media painting using acrylics, tempra, colored pencil and spray paints to create a geometric grid of complex patterns.

The Lehigh Art Alliance is one of the largest art groups in the Lehigh Valley with a total membership of over 500. The group contains many college professors of art and well-established professional artists.

McIntyre joined the college faculty in 1968. He was previously employed as head teacher in the Dieruff High School and prior to that served as art department head in the Stroud Union School District.

McIntyre, a Bethlehem resident, received the master of education and bachelor of science degrees from Kutztown State College. He has done additional graduate study at Syracuse and Lehigh universities.

Dr. Shwe continues research

EAST STROUDSBURG — Dr. Hla Shwe, chairman of the department of physics at East Stroudsburg State College, will be spending the summer at the Lawrence Berkeley Laboratory in California to conduct research in high energy heavy ions.

He conducted similar research at that facility last summer.

Since beginning research in high energy heavy ions last summer, Shwe has continued to participate in the program on a part-time basis during this academic year. He has gone to Berkeley several times during vacation periods at East Stroudsburg.

Shwe has also been invited to attend the international Conference on Nuclear Physics to be held Aug. 27 to Sept. 1 in Munich, Germany.

Shwe joined the ESSC faculty in 1970 after having served as associate professor of physics at Ripon College, Wis.

Nine students graduated from nurses aid program

EAST STROUDSBURG — Nine East Stroudsburg High School students were graduated as nurses aides at the General Hospital of Monroe County Thursday.

Participating in the ceremony were Charles Swisher, hospital administrator, Mrs. Margaret Decker, director of nurses, and Mrs. Vesta Altemus, assistant director of nurses.

Receiving pins and diplomas were Mariellen L. Dennis, Roberta, J. Fenner, Dianna Lockard, Patricia A. Miller, Virginia K. Miller, Cynthia L. Price, Nancy J. Price, Evelyn E. Wade, all of East Stroudsburg, and Henrietta Young, Kunkletown.

Under the nurses aide program, the students spent part of their junior and senior years receiving classroom and "floor" experience at the General Hospital.

As a result of their training, the graduates are qualified to serve as nurses aides in hospitals, nursing homes or extended care facilities.

They may also choose to continue their education with the goal of becoming licensed practical nurses or registered nurses.

The ceremony marked the conclusion of a program in which the hospital has cooperated with the school in past years. The course is being replaced on a county wide basis by the health assistance curriculum of the Monroe County Area Vocational-Technical School.

Phone books on way

STROUDSBURG — New phone books will be distributed in the Stroudsburg area by Bell of Pennsylvania beginning June 8. E. B. Chura, Bell's local manager, said deliveries of the new book are expected to be completed by June 15.

The directory's first section contains a single, alphabetical list of customers in the Bushkill, Cresco, Delaware Water Gap, Hawley, Lords Valley, Mount Pocono, Newfoundland, Pocono Lake, Saylorsburg, the Stroudsburgs and Wallenpaupack exchanges.

Crews of men and women will deliver 37,850 copies of the directory to customers in the Pocono Mountains area.

1973 JACOBSEN® TURBO-VENT ROTARIES are HERE!

What's Turbo-Vent?

Ordinary rotary mowers draw air only from underneath the deck. Jacobsen engineers designed the Jacobsen Turbo-Vent aerodynamic deck with upper vents to draw air in from the top too. The Jacobsen stabilized gull-wing cutter bar, operating within this Turbo-Vent cutting chamber with upper and lower air flow produces a remarkably efficient grass blade agitating action; this results in an improved, smoother-more even cut, highly compact bagging action and an under-deck "air suspension" system to help prevent clogging - particularly in thick, moist grass.

Jacobsen Pace Command variable speed drive enables you to select the best walking speed for your stride, the best blade speed for your grass . . . Front wheel drive means more mower maneuverability when cutting and trimming.

New 19" and 21" Jacobsen Turbo-Vent Rotaries on Display NOW!

19-Inch Illustrated
21-Inch Key-Start Heavy-Duty

NINE NEW MODELS . . . All with Turbo-Vent Cutting System. Plus:
- Choice of Jacobsen Heavy Duty or B & S 4-cycle engine
- Adjustable fold-down handle
- Fingertip-cutting height adjustment
- Vented washout port system
- Long-life polyester cable cord grass bag.

Come in and select yours . . . you'll get full cut for your money!

All Jacobsen mowers bearing this OPEI label meet or exceed the B71.1-1972 safety specifications published by the American National Standards Institute.

Write to know

The people in The Pocono Record's circulation area have a "Write to Know" — and The Record will try to provide the answers in the "Write to Know" column. The column is designed to answer any questions or solve any problems — consumer, government or anything else. Send questions to "Write to Know," The Pocono Record, 511 Lenox St., Stroudsburg, Pa. 18360. Questions must be in writing and signed in full. No telephone calls, please.

Q. Can you answer these questions for me? I'd like addresses for Jack Anderson, Pennsylvania's U.S. senators and the U.S. Congressman for Monroe County.

T. M., Saylorsburg

A. Anderson's column is distributed by United Features Syndicate, 22 E. 42nd St., New York City 10017. Sen. Richard Schweiker's address is Senate Office Building, Washington D.C. 20510, while Sen. Hugh Scott can be reached at 44 Hillcrest Ave., Philadelphia 19118. Joseph McDade is Monroe County's representative. Write him at 1645 N. Washington Ave., Scranton 18509.

Q. The contract we signed with the manager of our trailer park stipulates washer-dryer and oil services. We don't have these. Who can press the manager to provide these since they're included in the contract?

M. S., Henryville R. D. 1

A. Consult a magistrate or justice of the peace.

Q. I ordered a medieval clock and a cuckoo clock from Greenland Studios in Miami in January. Why haven't they arrived?

M. B., East Stroudsburg R. D. 1

A. Replacements will instead. Company couldn't pinpoint error. Duplicates will reach you in 10 days.

Q. Where can I find someone who'll teach me how to braid rugs?

H. A. B., Buck Hill Falls

A. How about it, readers?

Q. I recently received a mailed advertisement for a new diet tonic from Los Angeles. Can you find out if it's good or just a money gimmick?

N. B., Saylorsburg R. D. 4

A. No medical advice here or product recommendations. We point this out, though — the only two diet aids medical authorities agree on are willpower and exercise.

Q. I sent a check for two pantsuits to House of Demarest Inc. in January. I've received one, while letters asking for a refund on the second have been ignored. What's up?

L. H., Henryville R. D. 1

A. Your refund. New York City firm assured us it'll be in your mailbox in two weeks.

Q. How can you find out if something has a patent right in this country?

M. N., Stroudsburg

A. Do it yourself. Or hire someone to represent you at the U. S. Patent Office. Spokesman says the office lacks sufficient personnel to wade through files. It's located at 2021 Jefferson Davis Highway, Arlington, Va.

Q. House of Demarest in New York City never sent an order placed in November. Instead, they sent a credit voucher and don't answer my requests for a refund. Can you help?

G. S., Kunkletown

A. Let us know if they don't answer this time. You'll have a refund shortly.

Camp question raised in rec area

COLUMBIA, N.J. — Camping in the Poconos just ain't what it used to be — and it may get less and less like roughing it with the advent of the Delaware Water Gap National Recreation Area.

The park, expected to accommodate four million visitors annually, will have no campgrounds within its perimeters accessible by car. This rules out trailers, campers and all but the most athletic visitors.

Five camping areas will be available by boat or on foot. Group camping is already permitted to scouting and church groups. And Worthington State Forest in New Jersey maintains some trailer and camper sites.

National park policy, formulated in Washington, is responsible for the no campground plans. The policy will, according to Peter DeGelleke, park superintendent, give private industry a break.

"Those things — hotel, campgrounds, restaurants — which can be provided by private industry, will be," he said.

"This will give the private investor some assurance that we won't encroach upon his business," DeGelleke explained.

In the face of local antagonism over park acquisitions of business — and private — lands, this seems like a logical policy.

However, requests for a policy change were voiced Thursday at the Delaware River Basin Commission's annual meeting by state governors William T. Cahill and Milton J. Shapp.

Officials fear private industry will embark on a giant rip-off of park visitors.

Certainly, private campgrounds, already experiencing a business boom, anticipate a growth in business with increasing numbers of visitors. Whether this will bring profits or headaches, however, is undecided.

Most campgrounds in the Poconos — there are now about 25 — are "destination" camps. That is, they are designed more for the long-term camper than the overnight visitor.

These campgrounds are equipped with almost all the facilities of a resort hotel — swimming pool, store, recreation hall.

And these facilities, according to Leonard Becker, chairman of the camping committee of the Pocono Mountains Vacation Bureau, are almost indispensable to a successful camp.

A "three-point hookup" of water, electricity and sewage line is a definite necessity.

"The average city mother wouldn't put a knapsack on her back and go out and live with the bugs," Becker said. "But in a recreation vehicle with all the comforts of home, she's perfectly happy."

It is these comforts, though, that cost the camp owner money — and may result in difficulties for an owner with short season, large overhead and few profits, Becker said.

To open a campground, Becker explained, the owner must obtain a permit from the Department of Environmental Resources certifying his sewage system acceptable.

While most campgrounds now have septic or holding tank systems, increased numbers of campers could make sewage treatment plants a necessity.

"It's coming," Becker warned. "And we don't know what to do about it yet."

The expenses of sewage treatment plants could put already scrambling campground owners in a financial strangle hold.

Commissioners to hear all open space applicants

STROUDSBURG — Monroe County residents seeking tax relief through open space assessments will have to present their cases individually to the county Board of Assessment Appeals.

Mrs. Nancy B. Shukaitis, county commission chairman, said Friday the county will soon be mailing application forms to the over 100 residents requesting the special assessment.

Stating most of those interested are farmers, Mrs. Shukaitis said the county has received letters from developers, hunting and fishing associations and persons interested in land conservation as well.

Open space property tax assessments may be granted by the county to property owners who agree to preserve their land for a determined number of years.

Mrs. Shukaitis said application forms for inclusion in the open space program will be mailed with tax appeal forms to insure individual hearings for each property owner seeking the special assessment.

"The appeal process will be used to carefully screen every case to see that it complies with the law," Mrs. Shukaitis said.

Use of the open space assessment law in Monroe County is distinct from farm tax legislation being considered by the General Assembly.

State lawmakers are designing implementation legislation under the authority of a constitutional amendment approved in the May primary.

Monroe County's program is being conducted under a statute already in existence before the primary. Mrs. Shukaitis said the local program should be ready to implement for the 1974 taxing year.

Whether state lawmakers will have new legislation ready by that time is uncertain. If not, according to Mrs. Shukaitis, Monroe County will have a program to ease property taxes for qualifying land owners.

The push for special assessments was prompted by a reassessment of Monroe County in 1972 which sent property taxes soaring in some municipalities and school districts.

State continues spraying operations against moth

STROUDSBURG — The state Department of Environmental Resources (DER) sprayed 1,980 acres of Monroe County Friday in its ongoing gypsy moth treatment program.

Three helicopters from the department will be out again today, but all spray operations will be suspended Sunday.

Areas slated for treatment today include completion of 1,050-acre treatment in Reeders, Jackson Township; Weir Lake and Fairgrounds in Chestnuthill Township; Hemlock Lake in Polk Township; Pleasant Valley Estates in Polk; Jonas in Polk and Trexler Boy Scout Camp; Sun Valley and a roadside area north of Effort; completion of spraying near Castle Rock in Middle Smithfield Township; Pocono Heights; White Heron Lake; and area in Canadensis and two state land parcels.

The program will be conducted in sequence by the three choppers and may not be completed in one day. The department has consistently outlined more acreage in its daily program than can be covered each day.

Those areas not covered still follow the same priority for successive days.

Altogether the DER has some 11,190 acres to cover in Monroe County with dylox. Since the program began Wednesday, it has completed approximately 2,480 acres.

Running concurrent with the state sponsored program are two other gypsy moth treatment plans.

The U.S. Forest Service, spraying with experimental half-strength doses of dylox, has been spraying near Camp William Penn in Pike County. Friday 1,300 acres were covered by that program.

Today, the forest service is expected to complete the experimental program with two blocks in Pike and one area in Monroe County.

Meanwhile a third program sponsored by Monroe County and municipalities is underway using Sevin. Today the spraying for the back-up program will be taking place in Barrett Township.

Mosquito control money locked up in organization

STROUDSBURG — If Monroe County is going to seek state funds for mosquito control, it may have to join the five-county Northeastern Pennsylvania Vector Control Assn.

That seems to be where the funds are.

Victo McElhattan, chief of vector control for the Department of Environmental Resources in Harrisburg, said Friday the only money appropriated for mosquito control was done so on an emergency basis.

He said the state allocated a portion of flood reclamation emergency funds for vector control in the Wyoming Valley area — hit hard by Tropical Storm Agnes last June.

The association was formed originally by Lackawanna and Luzerne Counties to capture funds for flood recovery and later Tioga, Bradford, and Wyoming Counties joined.

Together, the five-county unit received $56,000 for vector control — all the money appropriated by the state for such activity.

McElhattan said the appropriation was a "one-shot" deal.

Areas of Monroe County have been subject to heavy mosquito infestation in the summer, but residents have been left to their own devices when dealing with the insects.

Governmental programs for vector control may be upcoming, however. McElhattan said introduction of legislation for a state grant in aid program is being considered.

Stating the only available vector control money is now going to cut down on rat populations, he said counties could lend their support to expanded vector control laws when they are introduced.

Maybe there "oughta be a law" against mosquitos, but until there is, Monroe County will either have to fund its own program or seek entry into the Northeastern Pennsylvania Vector Control Assn.

The Monroe County Commissioners are investigating a possible public program of control.

Guardsmen leave for annual camp

STROUDSBURG — Company C, 109th Infantry of the Army National Guard will begin their annual two-week training period this week at Camp Pickett, Va.

According to Captain Anthony Mangan, three separate groups will leave the Stroudsburg area for the training program. The first party of 21 men, commanded by Sgt. Art Kroll, left for Camp Pickett Tuesday and the second movement led by Captain Mangan departed Friday with 30 men and vehicles.

Lt. Terry McCool and Lt. William Greiner will be in charge of the main body of 108 men, who will leave by bus today.

Captain Mangan said the two main objectives of the training program are an air mobile exercise and an armed exercise with 48 tanks. Company members will also undergo familiarization with the M-16 rifle, M-16 machinegun, M-49 grenade launcher, 90 millimeter recoilless rifle and the 45 caliber pistol.

"This is the only time during the year when our group works with a full load equipment for training. All other times we don't even use vehicles," Mangan said.

The men will be judged by officers from the First Army and will be evaluated on performance of duty. This is the first time since 1970 that Company C has undergone such intensive training.

Mangan said Sgt. Jim Honszer and Specialist Will Howerter will remain at the East Stroudsburg Armory for recruiting duty.

Noise tests reveal trucks within law

HARRISBURG — The Pocono Citizens Against Noise apparently have nothing to sound off about, according to the noise survey taken in the Stroudsburg area last week.

The high decibel level reached was 90, two dbs. below the legal limit (for trucks traveling faster than 35 miles per hour.)

The average decibel count was 70, classified as "fairly high," by Department of Transportation (PennDOT) officials.

However, "we didn't get readings anywhere near what we would need to get an conviction on the present noise law," said Charles Tomich.

Tomich said while the results of the test illustrate the uselessness of the present statute, no immediate recommendations for quieting area noise would be forthcoming from the bureau.

"It would be a waste of time trying to enforce the law," Tomich said. "We can't tell the Monroe County officials anything new."

A noise law sponsored by area representatives is presently on its way through the state legislature. It would lower the permissible decibel level by two — down to 90.

E-burg pool rates set

EAST STROUDSBURG — Dansbury Park swimming pool prices for the 1973 summer season have been announced by the East Stroudsburg Recreation Board. They are as follows:

Freedom defeats Pius, 6-4, in District 11 playoff game

Special to The Record

COPLAY — Winning pitcher Jay Johnson and batterymate Rick Frankenfield each drove in two runs during a six-run second inning Friday to give Freedom a 6-4 victory over Pius X of Roseto in a District 11 playoff at Coplay Field.

The victory enables Freedom to advance to a meeting Tuesday at 4 p.m. with Whitehall, a 6-5 victor Friday over Lehigh-Northampton League champion Parkland, for the right to advance in District 11 play as the Southern Division representative.

Parkland advanced through its 8-5 victory over East Stroudsburg Thursday, also at Coplay.

The Patriots' first run of the game came on a Joe Hudak home run to dead center field in the second inning off loser Tony Casciano. After one out, both Dave Dodig and Don Garis singled to place runners at first and third.

The Royals got the next batter out but Keith Wilson walked to load the bases. Kelly Rogers walked to force home the second run before Johnson, who struck out nine and allowed the hard-hitting Royals just six hits, singled home two runs, taking second on the throw home.

Frankenfield then singled to score Rogers and Johnson and cap the rally.

The Royals, who finished a strong 16-3 under coach Tony Caracio in their first year of PIAA competition, scored their first runs in the home half of the third inning.

Sal Caiazzo reached second when his ground ball to third was first bobbled and then thrown away by the third baseman. Dan Confalone followed with a single, Caiazzo taking third.

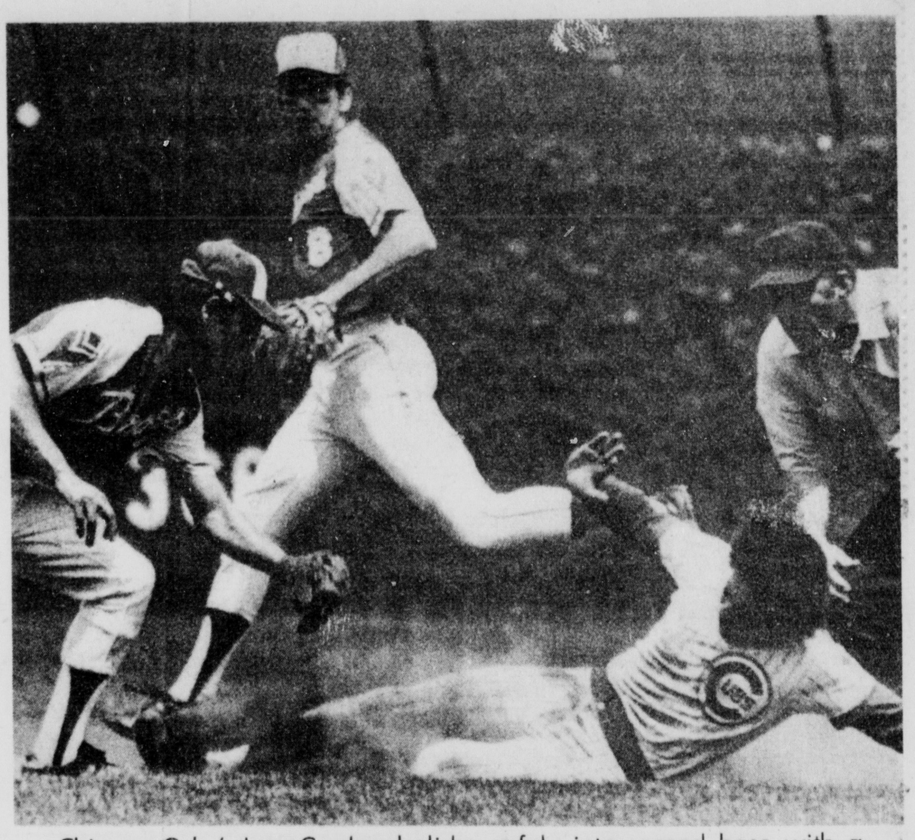

Following an infield pop out, Joe Diorio, one of only two seniors on the Pius squad, singled Caiazzo home, with Confalone taking third. Casciano then scored Confalone with a fly ball to center.

The Royals added a third run in the sixth inning when Casciano singled and Dan Fisher singled, Casciano stopping at second. The runners moved up on a passed ball by Frankenfield and Casciano scored on Matty De Paulo's sacrifice fly.

Pius' fourth and final run came in the seventh after two were out. Diorio doubled and scored when Nick Castellano reached first on an infield throwing error.

Second-year pro has 132 total

Thompson leads Kemper after 65

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (UPI) — Leonard Thompson, a 26-year-old who joined the pro tour last year, tied the course record with a seven-under-par 65 to take a two-stroke second round lead Friday in the $200,000 Kemper Open with a sizzling 12-under-par 132.

"It may be the best I've ever played—certainly it's the best for two consecutive rounds," said Thompson, a Lumberton, N.C., resident who had tied for third at 67 in the first round.

"Normally, anytime I can break 70 I'm happy," he said. Thompson is 31st on the money list this year with $38,040 and his best finish of the season was a tie for fourth at Houston. He toured the 7,219-yard Quail Hollow Country Club course with eight birdies and a bogey Friday.

Runnersup were Lanny Wadkins and Ken Still, a 13-year PGA tour veteran confined mostly to the mediocre ranks recently, at 10-under 134. Wadkins, No. 4 in money winnings this year, had a 68 Friday, while Still shot his second straight five-under 67.

Alone at 135 was first round leader Tom Weiskopf, who managed a 70 Friday to go with his Thursday 65 despite a couple of bogeys.

Charles Coody shot a 66 Friday and stood at 136, eight under par.

Next in line, at 138, were Larry Ziegler, George Johnson, Art Wall Jr. and Lou Graham. The field at 139 included Lee Trevino, Dave Hill, Dan Sikes, 61-year-old Sam Snead, Bert Greene, Mac McLendon, Rod Funseth, Wayne Yates, Al Geiberger and ChiChi Rodriguez.

Thompson, starting on the back nine, sank 10-foot putts for birdies on the 10th and 13th holes, bogeyed the 360-yard, par four No. 16, then struck with another birdie on No. 17 after hitting a four iron shot to within a foot of the cup.

Williams' homers in vain as Braves earn 8-7 victory

CHICAGO (UPI) — Ralph Garr's two-run homer highlighted a five-run rally in the seventh inning Friday and sent the Atlanta Braves to an 8-7 victory over the Chicago Cubs.

The Cubs, benefitting by Billy Williams' two home runs and one by Ron Santo, were leading 7-3 when Marty Perez led off the Braves' seventh with a doudle off the center field wall and went to third when Rick Monday bobbled the ball. Perez scored on Darrell Evans' sacrifice fly and Mike Lum singled to set the stage for Garr's second homer.

The Cubs called on their second reliever, Jack Aker, who took over after Larry Gura walked Dusty Baker. Baker stole second and scored to make it 7-7 on Johnny Oates' single.

Oates moved to second on Jose Cardenal's error in right field and scored the final run when Dick Dietz hit a pinch single.

The victory went to Pat Dobson in relief, and he is now 3-7. Aker was the loser and is now 1-4.

Berry's first home run of season defeats Yanks

NEW YORK (UPI) — Ken Berry's first home run of the season, a slice into the lower deck in rightfield, and Jerry Davanon's two-out double with the bases loaded in the fifth provided all the runs the California Angels needed Friday night to beat the New York Yankees 5-2.

Mike Kekich, the Yankee starter and loser, walked Bill Grabarkewitz with one out in the third inning and Vada Pinson singled for the first of his three hits before Berry's homer.

Kekich was kayoed in the fourth when Mike Epstein and DaVanon singled but Fred Beane came on and retired the side without any runs.

Beane gave up his only runs, both unearned, in the fifth. Pinson singled and Berry was safe on Horace Clarke's error. Frank Robinson drove Roy White toward the scoreboard in leftfield for his long drive, the runners advancing after the catch. After an intentional pass to Bob Oliver filled the bases, Epstein struck out but Davanon doubled just inside third base to clear the bases.

Long ball hitters pace Pirates' 9-6 win

PITTSBURGH (UPI) — Home runs by Willie Stargell, who leads the major leagues with 15, Rich Hebner and Manny Sanguillen powered Pittsburgh to a 9-6 victory over the Cincinnati Reds Friday night for the Pirates' fifth straight win.

Steve Blass, although yielding three runs before retiring a batter, picked up his second victory against two losses but needed relief help after going six innings.

The Pirates exploded for five runs in the third inning, highlighted by a two-run double by Hebner, who drove in four runs for the game, and Stargell's two-run homer.

Back-to-back homers by Sanguillen and Hebner produced two more runs in the fifth before Sanguillen's triple ignited a two-run rally in the seventh.

Cardinals slip past Astros, 4-2

ST. LOUIS (UPI) — A triple by Jose Cruz sparked a two-run fifth inning Friday night, breaking a tie and giving the St. Louis Cardinals a 4-2 victory over the Houston Astros and former Cardinal Jerry Reuss.

Cruz led off the inning with a sinking line drive to right that got by Jimmy Wynn and went all the way to the wall. Shortstop Mike Tyson singled to right to drive in Cruz. Pitcher Reggie Cleveland sacrificed Tyson to second and Lou Brock reached first on a fielder's choice. After Ted Sizemore fouled out, Joe Torre drilled a single to right to drive in Tyson.

St. Louis started the scoring with two runs in the first.

'Battery' paces Bosox past A's

BOSTON (UPI) — Carlton Fisk slammed a two-run homer and Rico Petrocelli added a solo blast Friday night to back Marty Pattin's seven-hit pitching as the Boston Red Sox tripped the Oakland A's, 6-2.

The Red Sox erupted for three runs in the first inning after Oakland took a 1-0 lead on Sal Bando's 10th homer of the year.

John Kennedy got a leadoff single for Boston and Fisk tagged his homer into the centerfield seats. Orlando Cepeda walked, Petrocelli doubled and Danny Cater singled home Cepeda.

PCC trips Damascus in season finale, 6-5

CRESCO — Pocono Central Catholic bolted to a 6-1 lead Friday and then held off a late Damascus charge to earn a 6-5 Wayne County League victory in the season finale for both teams.

The victory gave the Kingsmen their first success of the season and left them with a 1-9 mark under first-year coach Bob Ruggerio.

Pocono Central scored in the first inning when Chris Bartnick led off with a single, John Leonard was hit by a pitch and Tom Tierney reached on an error to load the bases. Sophomore Fran Regan then tripled to score the three runs.

The Kingsmen added another tally in the fifth when John Latzanich reached on an error and Joel Hardy did likewise. Joe Stott bounced out, with the runners advancing, before John Riley scored Latzanich with a sacrifice fly.

The Kingsmen scored their final two runs, which were needed to offset a four-run Damascus ninth, in the sixth inning. Leonard walked, advanced on a fielder's choice and scored on a single by Regan, who was thrown out attempting to advance on the throw home.

Riley then reached on an error and scored on an outfield error after a single by winning pitcher Dominick Molinari, who fanned seven.

Eagles seeking Gabriel

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — Philadelphia Eagles' Coach Mike McCormack said Friday the club was "instituting trade talks" with the Los Angeles Rams after quarterback Roman Gabriel said he wanted to play here.

McCormack announced after a day-long meeting with Gabriel that the Rams' star "says he would like to come to Philadelphia" and the matter now rests with Los Angeles General Manager Don Klosterman.

Gabriel, who has stated he does not want to play with the Rams next season, said his objective now was "to become part of this team."

McCormack, at a news conference attended by Gabriel, said he was awaiting a call from Klosterman to find out what Los Angeles wanted for the quarterback, who was plagued with arm problems last year and has been feuding with the Rams management.

McCormack said the Eagles cannot afford "the price tag" the Rams put on Gabriel in March but that Klosterman assured him on Tuesday "it won't be as steep" this time.

McCormack said if they could obtain Gabriel to play and work with young second-year quarterback John Reaves "it could solve the Eagles quarterback situation for the next 15 years."

ESSC's Jenkins leads triple jump qualifiers

CRAWFORDSVILLE, Ind. — Lenny Jenkins of East Stroudsburg State College soared 50 feet, ½ inch to tie for first place in the triple jump qualifying at the NCAA College Division Track and Field Championships Friday at Wabash College.

Jenkins' mark represented a new ESSC record and is probably the most impressive standard ever by a Warrior trackman.

The junior from Reading, Pa. finished third in the NCAA triple jump last year with a distance of 49-2¼, which was the old school record.

Emory Montgomery of Cal Poly Pomona also did 50-2½. The top 12 performers qualified for today's finals.

Jenkins failed to place in the long jump finals Friday, finishing eighth with a leap of 23-1½. The event was won by David Boyd of Fisk University, Tennessee at 24-3½.

John Briner of ESSC was lapped after 4¾ miles of the six-mile race and was waved off the track. He was running well out the field was just too strong with the top five runners, led by Chuck Smead of California State at Humboldt at 28:28.6, all breaking the meet record.

Briner will compete in the three-mile run finals today.

ESSC fifth in Rochester net tourney

ROCHESTER, N.Y. — East Stroudsburg State College dropped a 10-5 pro set decision in the doubles final but still earned a tie for fifth place in the 29-team Eastern Collegiate Tennis Championship at Rochester University.

The Warriors' team of Jim Breech and John Gillespie lost to Penn State's Bruce Isadore and Johnny Carr after defeating Jan Bortner and Mike Nautau, also of Penn State, 3-7, 7-5, when Bortner suffered cramps and was unable to continue.

In a morning quarter-final match, the Warriors' duo defeated Mark Kevitz and Steve Tekulsky, of host Rochester University, 1-6, 7-6, 6-4 to reach the semi-finals.

The Warriors finished with 29 points, with Penn State and Rochester fnishing in the top two spots.

Brewers shell Wood, top Chisox

MILWAUKEE (UPI) — The Milwaukee Brewers, with George Scott driving in two runs with a homer and a double, shelled Wilbur Wood, the major league's winningest pitcher, for 11 hits and five runs in five innings Friday night and went on to beat the Chicago White Sox 5-3.

Chris Short, making his first big league start in nearly two years, worked the first six inings for his second win. Short, making his 300th big league appearance, had not started a game since Aug. 30, 1971 when he opened for Philadelphia at Pittsburgh. He scattered six hits, walked only two, gave up one run.

The loss snapped Wood's five game winning streak and was only his second defeat in his last 14 decisions.

Tigers top Twins behind Stanley

BLOOMINGTON, Minn. (UPI) — Mickey Stanley socked a two-run homer on Jim Kaat's second pitch of the game Friday night, igniting a four-run outburst that paced the Detroit Tigers to an 8-3 win over the Minnesota Twins.

Detroit's Joe Coleman won his 10th game against three losses, pitching 6 2-3 innings despite control troubles and back-to-back home runs by Jim Holt and George Mitterwald in the fourth.

Prepping for Belmont

Indianapolis criticism escalating

INDIANAPOLIS (UPI) — Criticism of this year's tragedy-marred and rain-shortened Indianapolis 500 grew Friday both inside and outside the auto racing world.

The winning driver and his backer called for rule changes to cut the speed on the 200-mile-an-hour racing machines. Leading newspapers editorialized against the "lethal circus" and urged promoters to stop justifying the race as a testing ground for safer auto equipment.

The 57th annual running of the $1 million race was beset by two fiery crashes and days of rain which ended with the shortest race—332 ½ miles—and not even a checkered flag for winner Gordon Johncock.

Two men were killed. Two drivers and four fans were injured with burns suffered in crashes during the time trials and the race itself.

Inside the racing fraternity there were calls to reduce speed, either by a reduction in horsepower, smaller fuel tanks, or by banning or at least reducing in size the controversial "wings" on the cars' superstructures.

The wings, or stablizers, are designed to increase speed by producing downward draft pressure to give the cars better traction.

Winning driver Johncock was among those urging that the wings be changed to cut down on the turbulance. He said he had trouble passing some cars in Wednesday's race because the wind lifted up his car's front end.

"I'd really like to see them slow the cars down," Johncock said. "They're getting too fast." His average speed was 159.014 mph.

Johncock added, however, that he would rather see a reduction in the tremendous horsepower of racer engines. Some turn 900 horsepower.

"If they take the horsepower way from the engine, the wings would take care of themselves," he said.

Veteran car owner and promoter Andy Granatelli said he is considering withdrawing from competition at tracks like Indianapolis unless cars are made safer and slower.

Granatelli, sponsor of Johncock's winning car, said immediate action is needed by the United States Auto club (USAC), the supervisory group, to reduce the speeds and the extreme hazards of fuel fires.

"I have repeatedly tried to interest Auto Club and track officials in a planned program of reducing speeds by restricting fuel and fuel loads. My pleas have largely gone unheeded," he said.

"All of us in racing must face the fact that we are simply going faster than our tracks and drivers can safely handle these flying missiles," he said.

Johncock won $236,022 for winning Indy '500'

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind. (UPI) — The rain-shortened Indianapolis "500" purse totaled $1,006,105, the Indianapolis Motor Speedway announced Friday. The total was $5,740 short of last year's record purse.

Gordon Johncock of Franklin, Ind., picked up $236,022 for winning Wednesday's race, twice delayed by rain and called after 133 laps because of rain. The record first place prize was $238,454 won by Al Unser in 1971.

A breakdown of the payoffs for the 33 places:

1. Gordon Johncock, Franklin, Ind., $236,022; 2. Bill Vukovich, Fresno, Calif., $97,512; 3. Roger McCluskey, Tucson, Ariz., $60,752; 4. Mel Kenyon, Lebanon, Ind., $34,487; 5. Gary Bettenhausen, Tinley Park, Ill., $37,965; 6. Steve Krisiloff, Parsippany, N.J., $30,861.

Emile Griffith gets title shot at Monzon

MONTE CARLO, Monaco (UPI) — In what is probably his last chance for another world title, 35-year-old Emile Griffith Saturday will try to take the world middleweight boxing crown from Argentina's Carlos Monzon.

The New Yorker has already lost to Monzon once in the attempt when he was stopped in the 14th round in Buenos Aires in the fall of 1971. And with two recent defeats behind him he will go into the ring the underdog.

The bout was scheduled for 4:30 p.m. EDT in the open air Louis II soccer stadium.

It will be an unusual position for Griffith who has held the world welterweight crown three times and the middleweight crown twice in his career which has spanned 15 years.

"If something is worth fighting for, I will go and fight for it," said Griffith, "and a title is worth fighting for."

For Monzon, it will be the seventh defense of a title won three years ago from Italy's Benvenuti. In his 90-bout pro career, the Argentinian has lost only three fights. Not only has he never been knocked out—he says he has never been sent to the canvas.

But being on the wrong end of a knockout is not Monzon's worry at the moment.

The first hurdle—and a big one—will be the morning weigh-in. Monzon arrived in this Mediterranean principality today after winding up his training across the border in Italy.

Savage 'critical'; Walther 'serious'

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind. (UPI) — Race driver Swede Savage remained in critical condition for the third straight day Friday and driver Salt Walther still was listed as serious at Methodist Hospital, where both were being treated for injuries suffered in crashes at the Indianapolis Motor Speedway.

Indiana leads Pa. Conf. selections

ESSC's Myers named All-Conference

EAST STROUDSBURG — Pitcher Don Spiegel and third baseman Paul Maljan of the championship Indiana team head the selections for the 1973 Pennsylvania Conference All-Star baseball team.

Spiegel posted a 5-1 record and a 1.28 earned-run average while Maljan batted at a .328 clip for the Indians. Both are seniors from Trafford, Pa.

There are five repeaters on the All-Conference team from last year including Maljan, who was picked at first base in 1972.

Chosen for the second straight year were three juniors, pitcher Pete Vuckovich of Clarion (4-1 with 1.36 ERA), shortstop Roy Stauffer of Edinboro (.410 batting average) and outfielder Roger Stubbe of Edinboro (.386).

Bob Diliberto, a senior from Mansfield, was picked again as a first team outfielder. He was a first team choice as both a pitcher and an outfielder last year and as a pitcher in his freshman year, 1970. He hit .310 this season with 20 runs-batted-in.

The top vote-getter among the first team selections was senior outfielder Tim Fisher of Kutztown (.386), who was chosen by every coach who saw him play.

There were two ties for first-team berths. At second base, there was a deadlock between the conference's top two hitters by averages, juniors Linc Welles of Bloomsburg (.435) and Dan Mellow of Edinboro (.420).

Senior Scott Myers of East Stroudsburg (.316) tied Diliberto for the third outfield spot.

Also selected were junior catcher Jack Zduriencik of California (.322) and first baseman Charlie Virag of Slippery Rock (.342).

Shippensburg, which won the conference regular-season race for the second straight year, had two players on the second team. They were catcher Dave Polm and freshman second baseman Stan McCollum.

There was one tie on the second team at shortstop between Bob Skaneski of Slippery Rock and Tom Matisik of Lock Haven.

Other second team selections were Ray Davis of Millersville and Don Barnes of Mansfield, pitchers; Bob Wareham of Clarion, first base; freshman Mike Crone of Lock Haven, third base; and Craig Ziegler of Clarion, Laverne Mummey of Bloomsburg and Tony Kurtz of Indiana, outfield.

Indiana's Arch Moore top conference coach

EAST STROUDSBURG — Arch Moore of Indiana University has been elected as the winner of the Walter Risley Baseball Coach of the Year Award in the Pennsylvania Conference.

Moore guided Indiana to the conference championship with three straight wins in the playoffs. The Indians' final season's record was 16-8.

The award is given in the memory of Risley, long-time Kutztown State coach and administrator who died in 1971. Risley coached baseball at Kutztown for 26 years.

Moore was an All-American college baseball player at Springfield College where he set career marks for home runs, RBI's, doubles and hits. He played on the United States team in the 1963 Pan American Games in San Paulo, Brazil.

He then signed a bonus contract with the New York Yankees and played professional baseball for seven years. He was a member of the Yankees' pennant-winning club in 1964, seeing service at first base and in the outfield.

His professional career lasted until 1969 mostly in Triple A competition: at Toledo and Syracuse in the Yankee chain and at Asheville and Indianapolis in the Cincinnati Reds' organization.

Moore took over as coach at Indiana in 1971 and his first team posted a 19-6 record and tied for third place in the NAIA World Series. His last two teams have competed in the NAIA District 18 Playoffs. His three-year coaching record is 49-21.

The Risley Award selection is made by the conference's 12 coaches. Clark Boler of Bloomsburg finished second in the balloting.

Ellis replaces Quarry

NEW YORK (UPI) — Heavyweight fighter Jerry Quarry Friday was forced to pull out of his scheduled June 18 bout with Earnie Shavers at Madison Square Garden because of a case of the flu.

Replacing Quarry will be Jimmy Ellis, former World Boxing Association heavyweight champion, who has a record of 38-7-0. In four fights this year, Ellis has scored four KOs. Ellis is ranked third by the WBA.

Ellis last fought in Madison Square Garden in February 1970, when he was stopped by Joe Frazier in a title bout.

Quarry was examined on Wednesday by Dr. Edwin A. Campbell, the New York State Athletic Commission physician, who said, "Quarry is suffering from intestinal flu as well as generalized flu."

LL correction

SCIOTA — Brodheadsville was inadvertantly listed as a 7-6 winner of Thursday's game in the West End Little League. The actual winner was Sciota.

Golf's the game

Glen Brook Country Club conducts its first tournament of the year tomorrow with a best-ball, four-man tourney scheduled to begin with a shotgun start at 8:30 a.m.

Pairings for the event are as follows:

H. Storm, D. Frantz, S. Macan and D. Ehle; B. Foote, J. Kupice Jr., J. Haynes and K. Schmeiding; C. Potcher, C. Besecker, J. Evans and D. Falcone; A. Lockwith, S. Kanych, G. Lorenzet and M. Berman; J. Williams, L. Manzie, H. Schleicher and B. Smith.

Also, R. Morris, P. Shoemaker, R. Flower and D. Donatelli; I. Sommers, J. Russo, R. McNally and P. Bedrosian; C. Robbins, H. Pysher, V. DeFranco and W. Bowman; R. Keiper, B. Rusk, B. Edwards and J. Zimmerman; E. Mesko, L. Henning, H. Jarwoski and B. Schelman.

Also, D. Harris, P. Reimer, J. Erickson and L. Evans; C. Kohl, J. Metzgar, F. Duvo Jr. and B. Gibson; G. Ockershausen, C. Transue, A. Gould and T. Williams; A. Olson, D. Heller, A. Shivone and G. Hertzchuck; A. Kassner, D. Warner, D. Butsch and D. Heller Jr.

Also, I. Effross, C. Hauston, D. Talbot and P. Holmgram; T. Luzzi, E. Ferretti, G. Bishop and D. Harlacher; O. Radford, B. Chapman, J. Wills and B. Zimmerman and A. Ortenzi, M. Loney Sr., J. Eiler and J. Stasa.

Sam Snead, the old man of golf, will again attempt to qualify for the U.S. Open championship set for June 13-16 at Oakmont Country Club in Pittsburgh.

Snead and 599 other golfers face sectional qualifying at 13 sites next week, while 33 players, headed by defending champion Jack Nicklaus, are exempt from qualifying.

Snead will make his try with 87 others at Charlotte, N.C., near the site of this weekend's Kemper Open. Another large qualifying test will be next week at Philadelphia, where 74 touring pros will go after 16 spots in the Open.

Joining Snead in the qualifying test will be Ken Venturi, Ed Furgol, both former Open champs; former PGA winners Al Geiberger and Lionel Hebert, former Masters' championships Gay Brewer, Charles Coody, Bob Goalby and Art Wall and touring pros David Graham, Bob Dickson, Doug Sanders and Bob Lunn.

Other exempt players besides Nicklaus include Lee Trevino, Gary Player, Arnold Palmer, Bruce Crampton, Tom Weiskopf, Chi Chi Rodriguez, Billy Casper, Jerry Heard, Lanny Wadkins, Tommy Aaron and Dave Hill.

Eastern Airlines will again sponsor the $5,000 pro-am event to be held Wednesday at Whitemarsh Valley Country Club, site of the upcoming IVB Classic.

Known as the Eastern Pro-Am, the event annually consists of 50 foursomes, each comprised of a touring pro and three Golden Circle members.

Top prize is $500 to the low professional, with foursome matches to be drawn at the annual Pro-Am Banquet, which will be held June 4 at the Marriott Motor Inn on City Line Avenue in Philadelphia.

Whitemarsh to be scene of IVB Golf Classic June 4

LAFAYETTE HILL — With the top three money-winners from 1973, Jack Nicklaus, Bruce Crampton and Lee Trevino, defending champion J. C. Snead and a host of other top professionals entered in the field, the $150,000 IVB Golf Classic rules the spotlight in the Philadelphia area next week.

The 11th renewal of the Classic, sponsored by Industrial Valley Bank and Trust Company, begins Monday and will run through Sunday at Whitemarsh Valley Country Club in Lafayette Hill, Pa.

Hundreds of people in need of medical care will benefit from this year's tournament — net proceeds from the Classic going, as usual, to charity. St. Christopher's Hospital for Children is the primary beneficiary, with Coatesville Hospital, Mercy Catholic Medical Center in Darby, Montgomery Hospital in Norristown and St. Mary Hospital in Langhorne also participating as beneficiaries.

Possibly the finest field ever assembled for the Classic will tee-off in pursuit of the $30,000 first place prize. The list includes eight of the top 10 and 20 of the top 25 money-winners on the 1973 PGA tour through May 28, and champions of 16 of this year's 22 tournaments.

Champions of seven of the past 10 Classics, including two-time champion (1964-65) and IVB leading money-winner Nicklaus, Snead, Tom Weiskopf (1971), Dave Hill (1969), Bob Murphy (1968) and Dan Sikes (1967), will be in the field.

Crampton, Lou Graham, Jerry Heard, Homero Blancas, Jim Jamieson, Mike Hill, Miller Barber, Charles Coody, Rod Funseth, Bob Charles, Orville Moody, Hale Irwin, Fred Marti, Gardner Dickinson, Chuck Courtney, Tom Shaw and Mac McClendon, all of whom entered the tournament on the final batch of commitments, will also be in the field.

So will such other top names as Juan (Chi Chi) Rodriguez, John Schlee, Jim Colbert and Bert Green, who — along with Nicklaus, Trevino, Weiskopf, Hill, Crampton, Blancas and Funseth — have all won tournaments this year.

Nicklaus, Ford, Wall, Brewer and Coody are former Masters champions, while Ford, Rosburg, Marr, Stockton and Nicklaus have won PGA championships, and Venturi, Nicklaus, Trevino and Moody have won U.S. Open titles.

Nicklaus, winner of four Masters, three Open and two PGA championships, has already won four tournaments.

Klingel's trip is postponed

STROUDSBURG — A planned trip by Klingel's of the Pocono Tavern Softball League to New York City has been postponed due to the unavailability of an opposing team.

Klingel's had been scheduled to play today in New York but rained out scholastic games in the city forced rescheduling for today, thus making opposition unavailable.

Crackup prods SS protection

By HELEN THOMAS

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Backstairs at the White House:

The Secret Service is expected to take a closer look at protecting President Nixon as a result of the Army helicopter crash in the Atlantic off the Bahamas where he was vacationing last weekend. As one agent put it: "It could have been him."

The President has flown in the chopper which went down, drowning one agent.

The helicopter's landing lights were out and it was pitch dark on the island. The only persons on shore during the approach were a photographer and two firemen.

Julie Nixon Eisenhower has become the family's chief spokesman on the Watergate affair in terms of how it is affecting her father. But all members of the family are responding to questions in the same way. They are urging the public to concentrate on the President's achievements.

Julie also has gone to the defense of Press Secretary Ronald L. Ziegler whose credibility has sagged considerably since his "inoperative" statements on the Watergate scandal. "If the press doesn't believe him there is not much you can do," said Julie.

Her knowledge of White House history is apparently limited. The late President Lyndon B. Johnson had five press secretaries.

Other aides say that Nixon does not care whether Ziegler's credibility is questioned by reporters. In fact some insiders say that Ziegler has become a major policy adviser to the President.

The press secretary recently celebrated his 34th birthday and was presented a dart board by his staff. "We couldn't think of what to give him," one secretary explained. Ziegler has been seen tossing darts at the board which is tacked on a wall near his desk.

Reporters feel another White House celebrity who has lost a bit of glitter on his rising star as a result of Watergate is Henry A. Kissinger. The popular foreign policy strategist has defended the practice of government wiretapping as a necessity to prevent leaks of secret documents.

Members of his own national security staff don't seem to mind. They're still talking to the "boss" even though he gave their names to the FBI to be tapped.

Kissinger says he did not finger the four newsmen whose lines were tapped during the 1969-70 period when he claims the taps were legal.

There is an 80-year-old black woman in Harlem who is swamped with telephone calls every day. She is "John Lewis Mitchell," named by her father, who wanted a son.

Mrs. Mitchell gets calls from all over the country from people who want to talk to the other Mrs. John Mitchell, better known as Martha.

When she tells them she is not Martha Mitchell, she says, "they think I'm lying."

"I'm sure I don't sound like Martha Mitchell," she adds. "She's cultured."

Born in Birmingham, Ala., and a former school teacher, John Mitchell says she got one call advising her to "get out of town."

She told the FBI, which advised her to get an "unlisted number." But she says, "Why should I. There's no way in the world you could take my black face for Martha Mitchell."

4 lbs. chicken quarters
½ cup flour
1 teaspoon salt
½ cup fat
¼ cup chopped onion
1 clove garlic, chopped fine
¼ cup chopped carrot
3 sprigs parsley
1 basil or bay leaf
4 cups tomatoes
1 teaspoon salt
dash pepper

Dredge chicken in flour, sprinkle with salt and brown in fat until golden on all sides. Place in covered dish in warm place. Brown onion, garlic, carrot, parsley and bay leaf or basil in fat left in frying pan.

Strain tomatoes (when strained you should have 2 cups pulp). Add tomato pulp to browned vegetables in frying pan, add 1 teaspoon salt and dash of pepper and bring to a boil. Add chicken and simmer 30 minutes, or until chicken is tender. Serves 4.

Dr. Horace G. Butler opens office for x-ray diagnosis

EAST STROUDSBURG — Horace G. Butler, M.D., has opened an office for the practice of x-ray diagnosis in the Pocono Medical Building, 175 E. Brown St., East Stroudsburg.

A long time resident of Monroe County, he holds an BA degree from LaSalle College and an M.D. from the University of Pennsylvania.

Butler served an internship at the United States Naval Hospital in Philadelphia before active duty with the Navy in World War II.

He returned to the University of Pennsylvania as a fellow and assistant instructor in radiology. In 1950 he was named associate radiologist to the General Hospital of Monroe County and became chief of radiology in 1963.

Upon resignation from the General Hospital in December 1970, he was invited to join the staff of the Milton S. Hershey Medical Center of The Pennsylvania State University.

He continued in the teaching and x-ray division of that medical center while awaiting completion of his office in the new addition to the Pocono Medical Building.

Certified by the American Board of Radiology, Butler is a member of the American College of Radiology, the Radiological Society of North America, Pennsylvania Radiological Society, Philadelphia Roentgeon Society, Pan American Medical Assn., American Medical Assn., Pennsylvania Medical Society, and the Monroe County Medical Society.

Prof wins teacher award

EAST STROUDSBURG — Numa J. Snyder, assistant professor of music at East Stroudsburg State College, was awarded the "Great Teacher Award" for 1973 by Kappa Delta Pi, honorary society in education.

The award was presented at a meeting and tea held by Kappa Delta Pi in the lounge of Laurel Hall.

Assistant Professor Snyder joined the faculty of the college in 1969. He received the master of education degree from the University of Pennsylvania and the undergraduate degree from Mansfield State College.

He previously taught for many years and served as chairman of the music department at Stroudsburg High School.

The award is an annual honor chosen by a vote by student members of Kappa Delta Pi. Former recipients of the award include Marguerite Wallace; Dr. John G. Muncie, professor and chairman of the department of history; Dr. James H. Leiding, professor and chairman of the department of sociology-anthropology, and Harrison G. Hartman, associate professor of economics.

Serving as advisors to the society are Marguerite Wallace, assistant professor of early childhood and elementary education, and Donald K. Fetterman, assistant professor of education at the college.

Entering college

KRESGEVILLE — Sandra J. Serfass, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Roy Serfass of Kresgeville has been accepted at East Stroudsburg State College for the summer session.

Prof gives in-service lectures

EAST STROUDSBURG — Feno S. Volpe, associate professor of physical education and a supervisor of student teachers at East Stroudsburg State College, presented lectures on the learning center concept on at the Palmerton Area Schools.

The presentation was part of the in-service day for the physical education department at the Palmerton schools.

Associate Professor Volpe's presentations focused on the learning center concept as utilized in an elementary physical education program. A slide presentation portraying an actual program now being used was also offered.

Associate Professor Volpe joined the faculty at the college in 1969.

SHOPLIFTING
CAN PUT A PERMANENT MARK ON YOU
A Mark That Doesn't Wear Off
Or Wash Off or Simply Disappear.

Think of Yourself As A Thief? Maybe Not... But the Courts Do!

Maybe you just shrugged it off. Go to jail for ripping-off some small item in a store? Well, you'd better listen to the cold, clear, irrefutable facts. Shoplifting is stealing, it's a crime punishable by law. It can end your future before it's begun. If you're a juvenile it could have the most heart-breaking consequences. A police record could keep you out of college or good employment. Is it worth that?

Think Before You Shoplift!
It May Cost You More Than You're Willing To Pay

GARAGE SALE

Having a garage sale can be fun and profitable to you! Of course, the best way to reach more potential customers is to place an inexpensive Classified ad in your newspaper for several days before the sale. Then when the big day arrives, use the bottom half of this page to tell them where you're located by mounting it on heavy cardboard and displaying it out in your front yard!

Super pen alarm brings aid

By PATRICIA McCormack

NEW YORK (UPI) — This day in Futuresville a young woman stalls a hold-up man, confident that help is on the way—even though she hasn't screamed or pulled a police alarm.

That same day in Futuresville an elderly man falls to the sidewalk. Before he passes out from one of his periodic heart spells, he knows help is on the way. But like the young woman in distress, he didn't scream for help or phone for it.

All over town that day as any day in Futuresville people in various states of distress, like the young woman and elderly man, summon help by pressing a button on a signaling device that looks like a ball point pen.

The citizens of Futuresville had been issued the ultrasonic device in connection with a security system. Pressing the button sends a silent signal to a receiver in the police station. The system is so sophisticated that the police know at once exactly where to send help.

The technology involved in the system was from the NASA —The National Aeronautics and Space Administration. Signalling devices of the type used in the Futuresville security system had been developed for the space program.

Some earthlings don't need to wait for the emergence of Futuresville to take advantage of the development. Such a system is helping teachers summon help when things get unruly in their classrooms.

Six schools in Georgia, the Sacramento, Calif. High School, and two schools in New York City have such a system. The teachers wear the small, pen-size ultrasonic device in a pocket. The push of a pen button lights up on a grid in the Security office, showing the teacher's location. Help is dispatched at once. The teacher knows help is on the way because the pen signal also lights up a small square green panel in the hall or in her classroom. When that light goes out it means "signal received and help is en route."

The present and future use of the signalling device was described in an interview with Norman Schlaff, president of Norcon Electronics Inc., a New York communication firm.

He said a block association in New York is investigating installation of such a system for its members. A person needing help inside a house, for example, would press his pen button and a light would go on either outside his house or apartment. And a noise-maker would be activated, too, attracting further attention.

Schlaff sees a use for the devices in apartment corridors —especially as signaling systems for persons who live alone and get into stressful situations.

In the schools, he said, most often a brawny faculty member is sent on the rescue mission. "Usually, it is a phys-ed teacher," he said.

Schlaff's firm also has installed close circuit television in two schools in Brooklyn, N.Y.

Sponsored by the East Flatbush Neighborhood Action Program the system cost $34,000 and has a control unit consisting of nine monitors located in the dean's office which "watches" the activity through cameras.

The cameras are situated at all entrances, in the corridors, and in the cafeterias. The main screen in the dean's office can be switched from channel to channel, picking up the view from the other cameras. In addition, every area has an intercom so an official of the school can speak to a student or an intruder.

Schlaff said seven intruders have been caught since the system was installed in March.

Petting zoo set for fair

HAZLETON — The two things that kids love best about a fair are the rides and the food. Now there is a third favorite. The Pocono State Fair has signed the Petting Zoo that will be in the exhibit area of the Fair, to be held July 20th through the 29th at Pocono International Raceway.

The Petting Zoo has appeared at 10 state fairs, over thirty-five county fairs, and fifty shopping centers. This Petting Zoo was started in 1968 for the Heart of Illinois Fair in Peoria, Illinois as a promotion and was received so well that the following year it appeared at five state fairs and twenty-five county fairs.

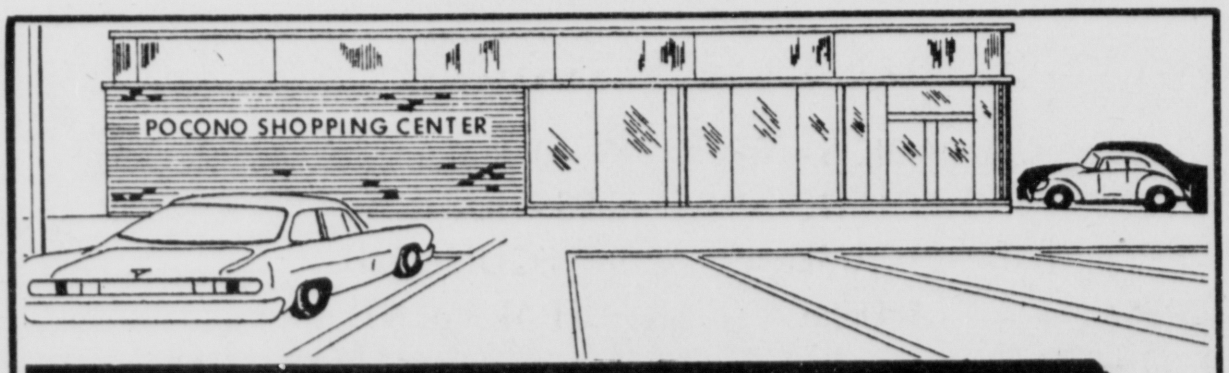

This attraction has appeared before five million, five hundred thousand people in twenty-five states. The animals have appeared on Bozo Circus, The Ed Sullivan Show, The Mike Douglas Show, Romper Room, and has been featured as an NBC TV Special.

Eating out more popular

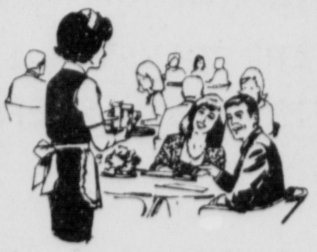

NEW YORK (UPI) — More than 100 million meals each day — everything from hot dogs to chop suey to filet mignon — will be served in restaurants and other public eating places in 1973, says the Diners Club.

Before the year is up, people at work or play will spend about $35 billion in retail dining establishments, with a growing portion charged to credit cards, the company reported.

Jonaire Museum dolls aren't just sissies

By BRUCE POSTEN
Pocono Record Reporter

STROUDSBURG — A doll of cement composition that can be dropped eight stories and afterwards be brutally used as a hammer is certainly no weak-kneed Betsy-Wetsy.

As a matter of fact, such a tough manikin rightly lives up to its name — Liberty Doll — and was produced throughout the United States during World War I.

The Liberty Doll, immodestly advertised as being almost indestructable, is a miniature replica of an American soldier and is one of many unique toys and dolls in Jonaire's Toy and Doll Museum on Rte. 191 South outside of Stroudsburg.

The museum is owned and operated by a retired couple, John and Claire Harl, whose first names are ingeniously combined to formulate "Jonaire's."

"Our museum is actually a hodge-podge of many different types of dolls and toys collected from friends, acquaintances, auctions, sales, and flea markets," Harl said.

Pointing to glass cases lining four walls of a medium-sized room, Harl and his wife described an assortment of dolls and toy cars, trains, and planes.

Dolls, sometimes called manikins, babes, babies, puppets or little ladies, form the biggest portion of their varied collection of exhibits. Most of the dolls are carefully identified by the name of the manufacturer, country, and date incised on the back of their hard bisque heads.

Harl explained that the heads of many of the 19th and early 20th Century dolls were composed of bisque — a mixture of plaster and cement — while the rest of the body was made of cloth stuffed with anything from grainy sawdust to fluffy cotton.

However, not all dolls were limited to bisque composition, but were also commonly made from wood, tin, and paper designs.

According to Mrs. Harl, who kept the thick Doll Encyclopedia by her side and was designated as the "researcher" by her husband, the French were the first to use small dolls or manikins, about 600 years ago, as models to display the latest fashions.

John and Claire Harl have been collecting old dolls and toys for years. Their toy treasures are beautifully displayed in glass cases, which line the walls and fill the floor space of their unique doll museum.

German dolls dominate world toy market

"The dolls were not considered to be children's toys, but served a serious purpose," she said.

Although children have always played with crude dolls as noted in the earliest records of man's history, the widespread production of dolls for tots did not begin until the 19th century.

During this time, Germany became the "toy capital" of the world, and manufacturers such as Averell, Greiner, and Shoenhut dominated the doll market. Of course, Yankee ingenuity — coupled with mass production and assembly lines — allowed the United States to become the biggest doll and toy manufacturing country during the 20th century.

Persuing Harls' collection, visitors are surprised to find that even the earliest manufactured dolls in Germany and the United States could walk, talk and squawk like their modern-day babbling descendents.

Harl pointed to a group of French dolls made by Emile and Pierre Jumeau between 1842 and 1899. One "little lady" in this collection modestly hid two long strings under her Victorian petticoat, which could easily be pulled by a child to get her to say "mama" or "papa."

Another doll, appropriately named "Dolly Record," made in 1923, was presumably designed for toddlers who hate silence. Dolly comes complete with a set of five wax disc nursery rhymes that a child can readily insert into a hole in her back. Her stomach, fortunately not used for digestion at today's food prices, is a miniature speaker which projects the words of the records.

"As you can see," Mrs. Harl explained, "we have six wax disc records, but the Doll Encyclopedia lists five — "London Bridge", "One, Two", "Little Boy Blue", "Rock-a-Bye-Baby," and "Now I Lay Me Down to Sleep."

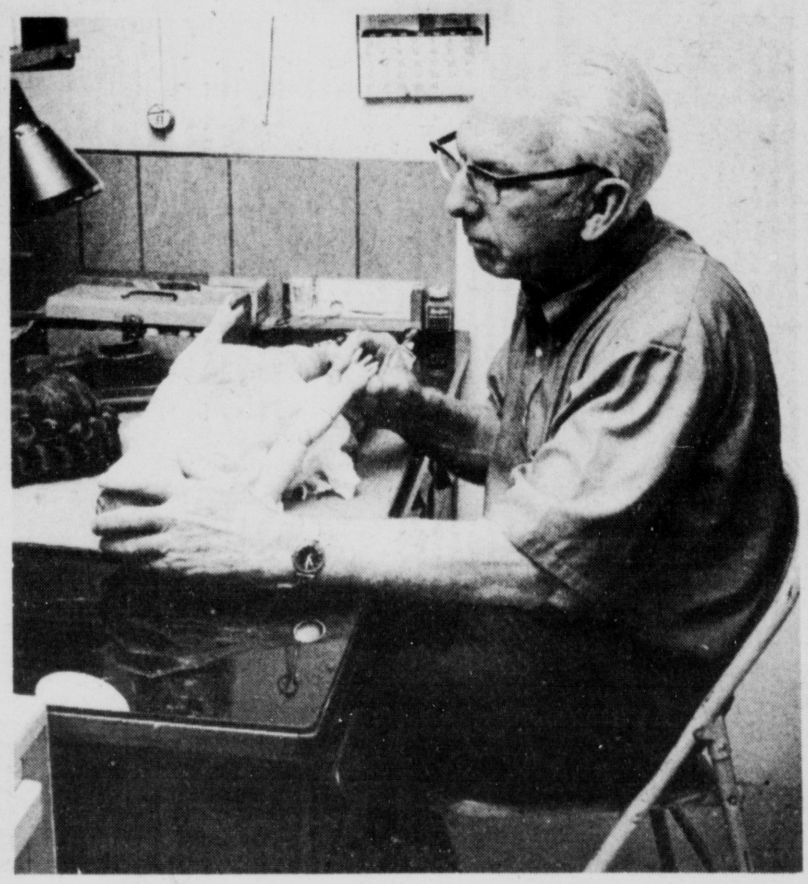

Harl pointed out other famous dolls including Madame Alexander's "Little Women" manikins based on Louisa May Alcott's memorable storybook characters.

Putnam's Byelow doll almost life-like

Out for a ride

Albert Shoenhut's dolls with moveable parts were also on display. Made in 1909, Shoenhut's dolls had wooden joints put together with double acting springs that allow the doll to assume almost any position.

"Springs were located in the elbows, neck, shoulders, wrists, hips, knees, and ankles of every doll. I believe the last Shoenhut was made in 1930," Harl said.

Other dolls at Jonaire's Museum include Rose O'Neill's sexless kewpie dolls, with their one shock of hair and tiny wings. Kewpies were first designed in 1912 and were produced in the familiar forms of farmerettes, huggers, and buttoneers.

"Perhaps my most valuable doll is Grace Storey Putnam's "Byelow," Harl said. He explained Putnam had been distressed that previously made baby dolls reflected the facial features of three or four year olds instead of those of an infant.

As a professional sculptor, Putnam gained the permission of various hospitals to look for a baby in their wards that might serve as a model for an infant doll. Harl does not remember who she finally found, but in 1922 she produced a baby doll that looked remarkably life-like.

In addition to Harl's collection of old dolls, mechanical toys are also on display. Many of the trains, cars, and planes are extremely detailed and modeled on man's larger machines.

Some of the toys can be wound-up, while others are easily pulled or run by friction. One toy car duplicated the exact movements of a car engine complete with moving pistons and workable gearshift.

Black and red trains, named after the lines owned by the powerful railroad barons of the 19th Century, also decorate the Harls' shelves. Their minute detail and intricate parts put the more modern toys to grievous shame.

Harl noted with the increase of competition in toy manufacturing, cheaper materials and simpler toys naturally resulted. The delicate and detailed products of the 19th and early 20th Century were forced to give way to plastic toys.

Added to this economic factor was the humanistic cry of concerned parents over the safety of their children's toys.

"For example, toys made of celluloid, which catch fire easily, have been completely banned from the market," Harl said.

However, on the other side of the question, one critical observer has noted the unbreakable toy was invented for today's more destructive children.

Harl tends to agree with this sentiment by stating "children of my generation seemed to take more care of their toys than children of today." Harl cited the Depression and the scarcity of toys during his childhood as one factor in causing the different outlooks of the two generations.

Harl's interest in toys and dolls not only extends to collecting them, but also fixing and repairing them as well. He runs a toy hospital, where wrecked trains, injured dolls, or smashed cars are always welcome.

Visitors can tour Jonaire's by "appointment or chance", according to Mr. and Mrs. Harl. The cost for children is a quarter and adults are charged one dollar.

One visitor who took the Jonaire tour on a miserably wet day wrote what may be the most appropriate description of the place in the guest book. He wrote, "Raining, but sunny inside this room. Your conversation and display made this gloomy day one to remember."

Worn coins not always valuable

By BEATRICE GARFIELD

If you were digging in the garden and came upon an old coin on which the date were no longer visible, would you assume it to be very valuable?

Most people do.

In fact the bane of many a coin dealer's existence is the person who rushes in excitedly with an old and worn United States coin exclaiming that "the coin is so rare the date's even worn off!"

Actually, the date is a very important factor in the determination of the worth of coins. If the date is worn away the coin — unless it's an extremely rare variety — is worth little to a collector.

It is important that the date be clearly legible because coins of certain years are rare — not because they're particularly old — but because, in certain years, the coinage was comparatively small. When the supply is small and the demand large the values, understandably, rise.

Take the U.S. dimes, for example.

In 1919 over 35 million coins were made at the Philadelphia mint. Two years later, however, in 1921, only a little more than 1 million were issued.

The dimes issued in 1921, therefore, are worth about forty times the price of the other!

The coins, to the layman, appear to be twins. They are exactly alike — except for the date.

That's why the presence of a date on a coin is so important: it's a clue to the mint record.

It is scarcity and demand, rather than age, which affects the value of coins. The scarcity depends upon the number issued by the mint.

The Columbian half dollar, issued in 1893 to commemorate the Columbian Exposition was the first of a series of commemorative half dollars. Collectors seek examples in original mint condition.

Fortunately our government has kept records of the mintage of all denominations every year since 1793. It is possible, therefore, to determine which years' issues are scarce and, hence, desirable.

The entire subject of coin values is a baffling one to the layman. One cannot judge a coin's worth just by looking at it. That's why we need numismatists. (That's the formal term for coin specialist. It comes from the Greek word "nomisma" which means "coin.")

Sometimes the differences are very subtle, quite imperceptible to the non-specialist. That's why you cannot expect a coin-dealer to appraise your coins from your description. He really has to study them, sometimes, even, under a magnifying glass.

If you cannot possibly take your old coins to a dealer he may suggest that you send a detailed description and a rubbing of both the front and back of each coin.

But be sure that you have received the dealer's permission first. Most of the specialists are far too busy to spend their time appraising coins by mail, even if a stamped envelope is enclosed. Ascertain in advance whether there is a fee for their service.

Now that we have presented some of the problems, we shall try to offer some assistance!

There are three official mints in the United States: the chief one at Philadelphia and branch mints at San Francisco and Denver. (There have been several others in past years).

Usually coins issued at Philadelphia are not marked but those from the others are indicated with a tiny "D" or "S" somewhere on the coin.

Now, not every mint-marked coin is valuable. Those of certain years, however, when only a few coins were made at one of the branch mints, command a higher premium.

One of the problems is (1) the layman doesn't know that mint marks may affect value and (2) doesn't know where to look for the little marks.

If you are interested you may write us for information about the location of mint marks on the U.S. coins.

Send your inquiries to Beatrice F. Garfield, The Collector's Corner, care of The Pocono Record, Stroudsburg, Pa. 18360. Please enclose a long self - addressed, stamped envelope for reply.

Gasoline shortage threatens vacationers

'A gas saver'

Commerce Secretary Walter Arader and Police Trooper Doris Sott busily attach a bumpersticker to a parked car in a promotional campaign sponsored by the Bureau of Travel Development. The sticker reads, "Traveling Pennsylvania is a gas saver."

By MARK R. ARNOLD
Dow Jones-Ottaway News

WASHINGTON — If you're planning to vacation by car this summer, particularly if you're going to a remote area, think again.

Barring a sudden change in the nation's motoring habits, experts predict, the long-threatened gasoline crunch will hit during this year's peak travel season, which runs from June 1 to Labor Day.

Some motorists may be stranded. Hundreds of gas stations may have to close. Dealers may begin rationing. And eventually we may all pay higher food prices because of a shortage of fuel for farm equipment used in planting and harvesting crops.

Officially, the Nixon Administration is predicting that only "spot shortages" of a few days' duration will occur in regions remote from refineries or major oil companies' pipelines. Industry men say the most vulnerable areas are the Rocky Mountain West, the upper midwest-northern Great Lakes region, and possibly New England.

The government has taken a number of steps in recent days to ease the shortage.

But a sobering analysis of the gasoline problem was given to the senate banking committee recently by Assistant Interior Secretary Stephen A. Wakefield. He said a summer gasoline shortage is "not certain but probable," and he outlined this scenario:

"If a 1 to 2 per cent shortage is experienced . . . freight shipments and delivery of goods would be delayed, motorists would find lines at some retail gasoline outlets and 'closed' signs at others. Certain regions may experience some impact while in other areas the effect might pass all but unnoticed.

"If the shortage were in the four to five per cent range, which is unlikely but possible, probably some areas would experience problems of a magnitude which could cause economic harm."

Bay Wright, marketing director for the American Petroleum Institute, which represents the major oil companies is alarmed by the prospects. "We're entering the peak travel season with 22 million barrels less gasoline than last year and predictions for a four per cent increase in demand. That will probably mean some tightening of supplies all over and critical shortages in certain areas. Some places will run out of gas for a week or 10 days, or there will be people stranded on the road."

The crunch has already begun. The Office of Emergency Preparedness estimates more than 560 gasoline stations have already closed their doors and 1,400 others are threatened with closings because of short supplies. Federal officials are urging motorists to travel in car pools, switch to mass transit, and go easy on gas-guzzling auto air conditioners.

In full-page newspaper ads the major oil companies are giving consumers tips for saving on gasoline bills, while contending that the companies themselves are not to blame for the energy crisis.

Who, in fact, is to blame is a matter of dispute.

Environmental groups argue that 20 major oil companies, which account for 75 per cent of gasoline sales and, through their control of pipelines, maintain leverage on independent marketers, have engineered the current shortage to drive up prices and profits.

The major companies point the finger at the environmentalists for opposing plans for new refineries and insisting on air-quality standards that limit use of inexpensive fuels.

Major oil magnates blame air standards for crunch

And both sides accuse the government, which for years followed a "drain America first" policy that discriminated against imports of foreign oil but at the same time made investment in foreign refineries more profitable than investment at home.

Now the administration is offering a variety of incentives to domestic refinery construction and expansion. A half-dozen major companies announced refinery-building plans in the past few weeks.

But, says Simon, "because of resistance to refinery siting, it may take three years to obtain site approvals, in addition to the three years required for construction." With such new sources of supply as the Alaska pipeline also years away, most experts say they think the coming crunch will be a recurring one.

"I'm afraid we're in for some seesaw years," says the American Petroleum Institute's Ray Wright: "Gas shortages in the summer, oil shortages in the winter, until, through domestic supply or imports, we solve our problem. But there's no plenitude of petroleum products any more, so don't be looking for a bonanza of cheap energy."

The alternative is to somehow depress demand not an easy objective to meet in the age of the automobile. Says Wright: 'New-car sales are up 20 per cent, and the engines are using a lot more gas thanks to emission-control devices; look at truck sales, semitrailers, recreational vehicles. I just don't see a turnaround yet." The Interior Department's Stephen Wakefield says gasoline consumption could be curbed.

"If each motorist could save only one gallon a week of gasoline," he told the Senate Banking Committee, "then we would not anticipate any difficulties" this summer.

There are two other ways to curb demand: Gasoline rationing — a course the administration dislikes — or raising the price of gasoline. A price increase would both force motorists to drive less and encourage companies to produce or import more.

"This is not a good alternative," says a government official who does not want his name used in connection with speculation about a price increase. On the other hand," he adds, "we may in the end have to allow it."

John Sedwick to produce Tanglwood Dinner Theatre

TAFTON — John Sedwick, director of the emmy award winning television program "Edge of Night" will be producing the Tanglwood Dinner Theatre this summer at Tafton.

"Edge of Night" won the emmy award for best daytime drama series at the 25th annual Television Academy presentations Sunday night, May 20. "Edge of Night" is now in it's 18th year on the CBS network.

In addition to producing Tanglwood Dinner Theatre, Mr. Sedwick will take four weeks off "Edge of Night" to direct the first four plays at Tanglwood.

Tanglwood Dinner Theatre opens June 29th with "Lovers and Other Strangers," a hilarious spoof on the pleasures and pitfalls of marriage, which delighted audiences in both its stage and film versions. "Lovers and Other Strangers will run June 29 thru July 8. Curtain is at 8:30 p.m. and before show dinners will be served buffet style from 6:00 p.m. to 7:30 p.m.

The price for dinner and theatre is $8 weekdays and $10 Friday and Saturday. Performances are nightly except Mondays. Each show will run one week.

The first performance June 29 is a benefit performance for the Wallenpaupack Area Medical Association and tickets for that opening night benefit will be priced at $12.50.

Some of the following productions on tap include Neil Simon's "Star Spangled Girl;" "Blithe Spirit" by Noel Coward and a musical, "You'e A Good Man Charlie Brown."

A full sized sectional stage is under construction and soon will be incorporated into the center of the Tanglwood Lodge. Approximately two hundred people will be able to dine and watch professional entertainers perform.

Camping no longer limited to practiced outdoorsman

STROUDSBURG — An entirely new type of housekeeping unit is being introduced in the Pocono area this summer at Manitou Cottages. These ultra modern Cabana-style units will offer the family on vacation all the comforts of home away from home.

Owner of Manitou, Tom Ford, designed and personally worked on the construction of these new units and looks forward to this summer when the units will be ready for occupancy.

Featuring full kitchens complete with dishes, silverware, glassware . . . even an electric can opener and electric coffee pot, these Cabana units will comfortably sleep a family of 2 to 5 persons. They are wall to wall carpeted and completely air conditioned with individual thermostat control.

The decor is early American and Ford explains "We've tried to give these units all the modern touches and still keep them a bit rustic."

A father of four himself, Ford feels that these new additions will be very popular with his guests and encourages people to book these new units now if they plan to vacation here this summer.

Manitou offers its guests the perfect home away from home. There are picnic and barbecue areas, fireplaces and pavillions and a white sandy beach and natural spring-fed lake. Manitou is close by markets and some of the Pocono's finest restaurants.

"A family can vacation at Manitou, prepare their own breakfast and lunch and go out to a different restaurant every night and still spend less than they would have to spend at a large resort," Ford said.

A bottle of free champagne is offered to any guest that can beat Tom Ford Sr. in their first game of table tennis. This standing challenge is picked up by guests who return year after year to Manitou. Facilities for table tennis, nickel machines and other amusements are available in Manitou's Recreation Hall.

In addition to the new Cabana units, there are seventeen housekeeping cottages at Manitou. "Our log cabin cottages are most popular with the city people" says Tom. "Guests seem to enjoy something on the rustic side." The larger cottages take up to eight or nine people comfortably.

Rustic decor and all the comforts of home continue to make Manitou one of the Pocono's leading smaller resorts. Addition of the new Cabana units will also make it the largest housekeeping cottage colony in the Poconos.

Spinners take lunkers

STROUDSBURG — They don't look like anything natural, but they do catch fish!

That's the opinion of most anglers when they see some of the new single and double bladed spinner lures being made today.

The current popularity of spinner lures comes from their use in southern lakes, but their appeal is such that they are quickly finding a place in tackle boxes all over the country.

Panama Canal traffic

PANAMA CITY (UPI) — Oceangoing transits of the Panama Canal dropped from 14,617, or an average of 40 per day in fiscal 1971 to 14,238 or 38.9 per day in fiscal 1972, the Panama Canal Company reports.

The decrease, the company says, was the result of U.S. dock strikes, a U.S. coal strike, a Japanese seamen's strike, the long Japanese recession and uncertainty caused by revaluation of the yen and other currencies.
